Too Little, Too Late Loses Burma War

WRITER TELLS HOW JAPS WON VALUED PRIZE

Says Allied Aircraft Driven From Bases By Bombing and Strafing.

DRIVE TOOK FOUR MONTHS

Chinese Veterans Fail To Arrive in Time to Save Area.

By DANIEL DE LUCE

CALCUTTA, India—(Wide World)—Two factors shaped the course of the war in Burma which so far has been so disastrous to the British and Chinese.

One was the long delay in accepting and bringing in veteran Chinese troops who, in proper numbers, would have been capable of making the Rangoon delta as tough a nut to crack as Crimea

The second was the expulsion of Allied craft from Burma bases by concentrated Japanese bombing and strafing of all available landing grounds.

The first factor decided the campaign: the second turned reverses into complete evacuation because the Allied armies had to fight blindly without aerial reconnaissance.

This opinion comes from high officers — British, Chinese and American.

By the maximum use of an army authoritatively estimated not to exceed four divisions and an air force probably not over 450 planes, Japan drove a massive wedge from the Bay of Bengal nearly to the borders of Tibet in an amazing four-month campaign that practically separated two of her greatest foes and made their territories mere islands of resistance.

What the Japanese won in four months would be cheap at almost any price, but they actually got it at small cost.

Opposing them in the first half of the campaign were two imperial divisions combined with an Saboteurs Flood Railway Station, Start Fires.

MOSCOW —(INS)— Saboteurs have damaged the watermain in the Anhalter station at Berlin and burned down buildings in the western part of the German capital, the Moscow radio reported today.

The watermain burst, flooding the station and holding up railroad traffic for a considerable period, the report said.

Forest fires have been started in Salzhausen, doing widespread damage, and a freight station has been burned to the ground there, the Moscow broadcast claimed.

RESCUE YOUTH FROM TUNNEL

Workers Pry Cadet From Beneath Boulder After 15 Hours.

PORTLAND, Ore. —(U.P.)—Rescue squads pried 16-year-old Jimmy Harper out from under a 1500-pound boulder in a remote tunnel of Portland's Rocky Butte early today.

The rescue ended a 15-hour imprisonment during which Harper, a Hill Military Academy cadet, remained conscious and cheerful, despite the crushing weight of the avalanche. He was pinned against the wall of the tunnel about 6 o'clock last night.

The triumphant rescuers brought Harper to the surface on an improvised stretcher, and waiting physicians immediately administered anaesthetics. At Providence hospital, attendants said Harper's condition was serious.

U.S. Fighters Battling on More Fronts

Roosevelt Reveals Wider Participation In World Fighting.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt said today that American forces are getting into the world fight more and more, and in new places all of the time.

He made this statement in discussing the urgent need for increasing numbers of transport planes to enable the army and navy to get into the rapidly expanding battle fronts against the Axis

Mr. Roosevelt also said that the total volume of lend-lease aid to anti-Axis nations in April amounted to $677,000,000.

This was an all-time monthly figure, and brought to $3,835,000,000 the total lend-lease aid since the inauguration of the program in March, 1941

The April figure of $677,000,000 represented a substantial increase over the $588,000,000 of March, 1942.

The president noted that lend-lease aid in April was at an annual rate of more than $8,000,000,000, compared with an annual rate of $4,000,000,000 last December.

For story on government taking control of all commercial air lines, see Page 9.

Asked whether shipments to Russia were yet up to the level of the Moscow protocol, in which a certain volume was assured by this country, the president said that shipments to Russia were coming along all right.

GAS CURB JUST MISSES CITY

But Ohio Administrator Says Rationing Seems Sure to Strike Here.

Motorists in the Mansfield area and the rest of Ohio escaped gasoline rationing by a narrow margin today, but state rationing officials predicted that rationing of gas is "just as certain to come to Ohio as anything can be these days."

Harry T Beckmann, state rationing administrator, revealed that original gasoline rationing plans of the office of price administration listed Ohio with the District of Columbia and the 17 eastern seaboard states now under the gas rationing order.

"It was only at the last minute that Ohio was taken from the list and the rationing order altered to extend only to the Ohio river," Beckmann said. "The order was put into effect because of a transportation shortage in the east and Ohio was excluded from the rationed area because we did not have a transportation shortage at that time."

The fact that Ohio has a number of large oil refineries in the north central section of the state also was "a governing factor" in the government's decision to eliminate Ohio from the initial areas where gasoline would be rationed,

Weather Fails to Slow Up First Day Of Bargain Buying

Despite cloudy skies, shoppers thronged the downtown area today in the opening day of Mansfield Days, annual two-day sales event sponsored by the Retail Merchants association.

Many hundreds of shoppers availed themselves of the opportunity to ride free on downtown-bound buses of the Mansfield Rapid Transit system between the hours of 9 a. m. and 11:15 a. m. Regular fare is charged for the return trip from downtown.

Merchants reported enthusiastic response by shoppers to the offering of special merchandise values to mark the annual sales occasion.

The 50 merchants participating in the event are displaying yellow and black window signs and their Retail Merchants assocation flags. Slogan this year of Mansfield Days is "Shop in Mansfield—Save Tires—Save Gasoline."

ORDER PUMPER WITHIN HOUR OF 'SCOLDING'

But Mayor Denies Criticism From Councilman Prompted Speedier Action.

ACCEPT $9,950 BID

Control Board Makes Award, Delivery Depends on Word From War Board.

Within an hour after Councilman Fred Miller's attack on administration delay had appeared in The News-Journal yesterday, the city board of control awarded the contract for a new fire pumper

Mayor W. J. Locke denied today, however, that Miller's criticism had had any bearing on the action of the board, made up of himself and Service-Safety Director Fred B Wolff

Whether the city will actually get the pumper now depends on action of the War Production board in Washington, which must issue a priority order for it.

The contract was awarded the Seagrave company of Columbus on its bid of $9 950 to supply a 750-gallon pumper with a seven-man cab

Although four companies entered bids on the pumper, only two were actually considered. One company; the Four-Wheel Drive corporation, stated it was handling defense work and could not supply the pumper. Another, the Mack company was virtually eliminated because it did not bid on a seven-man cab truck.

The specifications offered the competing companies called for a truck with a cab to seat not less than three men but Mayor Locke said that the board favored the seven-man cab.

Mayor Locke admitted that there may have been "some misunderstanding which prompted the Mack company to omit a bid on the seven-man cab Although the Mack company's bid was for only a three-man cab, the same type as used by the city at present, it was the lowest presented by any of the companies.

The Seagrave bid with discount

WIELDS AX

Farmer Kills Child, Wounds Members of Family.

ATHENS—(INS)—Charles Chester Hawk, 33-year-old farmer of nearby New Marshfield, today attacked his wife and three children with an ax, killing one before firing a 16-gauge shotgun into his own head

Athens County Sheriff George Bateman said Hawk apparently took the ax and struck each of the members of his family on the head while they were asleep in separate beds.

Carol Ann, 8, was found dead in bed. Hawk's wife, Margaret, 28, and two other children, Willow Jean, 5, and Betty, 9, apparently suffered fractured skulls and were rushed to an Athens hospital where their condition was said to be serious

Friends of Hawk said he had worried about the war "all of the time" and the sheriff ascribed this as the reason for his act.

LIGHTNING HITS, DESTROYS BARN

Electrical Storm Strikes in Southern Richland; More Rains Forecast.

Fire caused by lightning destroyed a large barn on the Harry Zody farm in Monroe township yesterday afternoon as a severe electrical storm passed across the southern half of Richland county.

More showers and scattered thunderstorms were forecast for this section today and the weatherman said they will be followed by cooler weather this afternoon and tonight.

Struck by lightning about 3 p. m. yesterday, the 40 by 60 frame barn on the Zody farm was destroyed before Zody and his neighbors could remove much of the contents of the building. The loss was estimated at $8,000 by Zody. He had no insurance.

Lost with the building were farming implements, 14 tons of hay, a quantity of soy beans and clover seed, two pigs, and a crib of corn. The corn in another crib was saved by permitting it to pour out onto the ground. Other livestock was saved.

The showers yesterday brought 18 of an inch of rainfall in the Mansfield area. From a peak reading of 80 yesterday, the mercury dropped to 52 after the storm. The noon reading today was 59.

Gasoline Hoarders Get Warning From City's Fire Chief

Mansfield motorists, who may be hoarding gasoline in fear of a shortage and are attempting to "beat the rationing program," were warned today by Fire Chief Charles Seeburger that such a practice is creating a serious fire hazard.

Chief Seeburger said that some motorists were buying a tankful of gasoline, driving home and siphoning it out into containers and returning for another tankful.

Such a practice may place homes, business places and other buildings in great danger, according to Chief Seeburger. He warned that storage of gasoline in garages and sheds and in certain zones in the city is in violation of city ordinances and subject to heavy penalties.

Chief Seeburger poined out that one gallon of gasoline, under

Draftees Leave Tomorrow at 7:30; Another Crowd Expected

Mansfield's second send-off for a group of selectees leaving for an Army induction center will be staged at 7:30 a. m. tomorrow, when the community demonstration will be staged in honor of a group from Draft Board 2.

The buses in which the contingent will leave for induction will be parked in the middle of North Main street in front of the Richland Trust building. That area will be blocked to traffic.

Arrangements were being made today for a band to provide music. Martial music has been a popular feature of each of the previous send-offs.

Earl Saltzgaber, chairman of the Richland Victory Civic Committee, which stages these events, said today:

"The committee appreciates very much the way the people of Richland county have been turning out at these send-offs, and we look for continued enthusiasm and just as high an attendance in the future as there has been in the past."

Approximately 5,000 persons attended the send-off staged Wednesday of this week for the contingent from Draft Board 1. The next send-off planned after that tomorrow is one scheduled for early next week when a group from Draft Board 3 will leave for an Army induction center.

Nazis Claim 4 U.S. Ships Sunk In Arctic Ocean

Berlin Says Planes Bagged Cruiser, Destroyer In Stiff Fight.

BERLIN—(German Broadcast Recorded By United Press In New York)—The high command said today that German warplanes in a battle with "a United States squadron" along the Allied arctic supply route to Russia sank a 9,100-ton American cruiser, a destroyer, an icebreaker and at least one merchant ship.

The attack against the Allied convoy en route to Russia's arctic port of Murmansk was said to have been carried out yesterday between North Cape and Spitzbergen.

(Editor's Note—There was no confirmation of this Axis propaganda claim in Washington or any other reliable source and no reason to believe it true.)

"The German air force sank a cruiser of the Pensacola class of 9,100 tons as well as a destroyer," the high command said in a communique. "In addition, an icebreaker of 3 000 tons and a merchant ship of 2,000 tons were destroyed. A merchant ship of 10,000 tons was so severely hit that it was left burning from bow to stern."

Low-flying German fighter planes were said to have destroyed four ships totalling 7,500 tons in "some ports on England's south coast" in an attack Thursday evening, dodging violent anti-aircraft fire and a balloon barrage.

The high command said that only Luftwaffe planes participated in the attack on the convoy in the arctic.

Several destroyers, presumably American, accompanied the cruis-

Soviets Spur Drive On Entire Front, Admit Retreat In Kerch Area.

BULLETIN

LONDON —(AP)— Sweeping across the Donets river on a 50-mile front, Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's mechanized Red Army was reported tonight to have crushed through the inner defenses of Kharkov in at least two places driving the Germans before them.

(By United Press)

MOSCOW—The Red army has driven across a water barrier before Kharkov, (possibly the Donets river) in a fierce battle of tanks that opened big holes in the German defense line protecting the city, according to military advices reaching Moscow today.

New Russian offensives were reported developing to the north along the 1,800-mile front, between Leningrad and Moscow, as the battle for the narrow Kerch peninsula in the Crimea continued.

A large-scale battle of tanks, perhaps including new triple-turret American tanks which the Russians are using, was said to have occurred along the water barrier outside Kharkov.

After breaches had been driven in the German line, the enemy rushed up infantry reserves and mechanized units supported by dive-bombers and attempted to counter-attack. The attack was thrown back, however, with the destruction of 20 Nazi tanks, it was said.

(A British broadcast recorded by CBS, perhaps referring to the same action, said the Russians had forced their way across the

ESCAPE: British Reach India; Jap Invasion Thrust Reported

BULLETIN

NEW DELHI—(U.P.)—British forces in northern Burma have succeeded in escaping a Japanese trap around Lashio and have withdrawn to new positions, a general headquarters communique said today.

(By Associated Press)

Climaxing a bloody five-month battle against hopeless odds, the last weary remnants of the British army in Burma have crossed into Manipur state in eastern India, it was reported today, while the Vichy radio declared Japanese troops had advanced 80 miles into India along the Bay of Bengal.

The Vichy broadcast quoted vague and unconfirmed reports that the invaders had reached a point within 16 miles of Chittagong, only 210 miles from the great Indian metropolis of Calcutta.

The withdrawal of the last British force, estimated at 5,000 men, followed a dogged retreat from the bomb-ruined city of Mandalay and a Japanese thrust which separated the British from their Chinese allies commanded by the American Lieut. Gen. Joseph W Stilwell.

At last reports, Gen Stilwell's forces were stubbornly resisting a Japanese advance up the Burma road some 125 miles into China proper.

In eastern China, a Tokyo broadcast credited Japanese forces with inflicting a heavy defeat on the main body of the 22nd Chinese division in a battle 17 miles northwest of Kuhsienchen, in central Hopeh province.

Other far Pacific developments included:

Battle of Australia — Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported that long-range Allied bombers again heavily pounded Japanese ships in the harbor of Rabaul, New Britain, and scored a smashing victory over enemy fighters which tried to intercept them.

TOAST: Solemn Drink Reveals Men Returned From Coral Sea

(By Associated Press)

SYDNEY, Australia—Three sailors at a hotel bar drank slowly, thinking of things far away.

Suddenly, glass tinkled. The men had broken their drinking glasses in unison.

"What did you do that for?" belligerently asked the hotel keeper.

"You'd better go away. We're toasting comrades who didn't come back."

That terse reply ended the incident—and disclosed that the first men who fought the battle of the Coral sea were back from what might have been the great naval action since Jutland

The returning men arrived unheralded and no one met them except hospital attendants.

Most of the first arrivals were casualties of the sea fight. They were taken to an Allied hospital many miles inland.

Some walked only with assistance.

Others were carried on stretchers.

Two men carried in were swathed in bandages.

Others were shielded only by blankets.

Some showed evidence of severe burns.

It was a slow, sad procession but some men waved an unbandaged arm or hand to hospital nurses on a nearby balcony.

A few men who came through unscathed were given shore leave—and that was how the three at the bar broke the news that the first men were back from the Coral sea triumph.

er and one of them was bombed to destruction during the fierce fighting between the anti-aircraft guns of the ships and the bombs and cannon of the attacking planes of the Luftwaffe.

The running fight started Thursday afternoon when the Luftwaffe pilots sighted the American formation between the islands of Spitzbergen and Norway's north cape, the high command said. Bombs set the cruiser afire and it sank about midnight.

An ice breaker of 3,000 tons and a merchant ship of 2,000 tons later were spotted in the fjords of Spitzbergen, bombed and sunk.

A 10,000-ton merchant ship was attacked off the coast of Murmansk and German bombs left it burning at both the stern and the bow.

(The German radio did not make clear whether the attacks on the ice breaker and the two merchantships were part of the attack on the warships.)

(The Penscola class comprises two ships, the Pensacola and the Salt Lake City. Both were laid down in 1929 and are heavy cruisers of 9,100 tons and normal complements of 663 men. They were well armed, carrying 10 eight inch 55 calibre rifles, four five inch 25 calibre anti-aircraft guns and two three-pounders.

(The cruisers also carried four planes, launchable by catapult. Berlin did not give the name of the destroyer reported sunk.)

British Destroy 3 Enemy Ships

LONDON —(U.P.)— British light naval forces destroyed three enemy ships in two running battles with a German convoy and trawlers off the French coast on Wednesday and last night, the admiralty reported today.

A Nazi torpedo boat was torpedoed and sunk in the first encounter, during which a light British coastal ship was lost.

"The Germans have admitted that one of their torpedo boats was sunk in this engagement," the communique said. "Considerable other damage and casualties undoubtedly were inflicted on the enemy."

The admiralty acknowledged that a light British coastal ship was missing after the encounter and "must be considered lost."

Another encounter occurred last night off the French channel coast when British light forces fought two German armed trawlers, both of which were disabled and left in sinking condition, it was stated.

No damage was suffered by the British forces in the second engagement.

U. S. Presses to Get French Ships

WASHINGTON —(INS)— With dismantling of the French warships in Martinique underway, the United States government today is understood to be pressing for acceptance of the other American proposals concerning the future status of the French Caribbean possessions.

These proposals include the requisitioning of seven French tankers now lying idle in French Caribbean waters, Pan-American control of communications between the French possessions and the outside world, and other measures to help safeguard the security of the Caribbean and prevent any pro-Axis activities in Martinique, Guadeloupe, and French Guiana.

The negotiations are being carried out with Admiral Georges Robert, the French high commissioner of Martinique, by Admiral John H. Hoover, commander of the American naval forces in the Caribbean.

Mexico Sends Ultimatum to Axis

MEXICO CITY—The Axis must explain the torpedoing of a Mexican merchant ship off the Florida coast in a manner satisfactory to Mexico by May 21 or Mexico will take steps "demanded by our national honor," the government announced today.

Foreign Minister Ezequiel Padilla dispatched the ultimatum to Germany, Italy, and Japan today as labor, political leaders and the press demanded retribution for the 13 Mexican lives lost when the brightly illuminated Mexican ship was torpedoed without warning Wednesday night.

Vicente Lombardo Toledano, president of the Confederation of Workers of Latin America, demanded, in an open letter to President Manuel Avila Camacho that Mexico declare war on Germany at once. The newspaper La Prensa, one of the largest of the Mexican dailies, also demanded a declaration of war.

Mexico has severed diplomatic relations with Germany, Italy, and Japan. Only congress can declare war, but congress may delegate that power to the president. The ultimatum was sent through neutral intermediaries to all three Axis countries, since the submarine was not identified.

A foreign office statement said the torpedoing "once more shows the ways unhesitatingly adopted by Axis powers to conduct hostilities in this conflict.

The foregin office identified the ship as the Portrero De Llano, a tanker of 7,500 tons burden, en route from Vera Cruz to United States ports with 50,000 barrels of oil.

SOVIETS WIDEN BREACH IN NAZI KHARKOV LINE

Spur Offensive Along Entire Line; Admit Withdrawal In Kerch Area.

Donets river and driven westward seven miles toward Kharkov.)

Front line dispatches reported that the Red air force had wrested mastery of the air from the Germans and was hammering enemy front lines and communications day and night.

Tanks, flame throwers, infantry, Cossack cavalry, under an umbrella of Stormovik dive bombers and fighter planes, swept around pill boxes, and through earthworks and entrenchments. Dispatches from the front reported the Germans in disorderly retreat, abandoning huge stores of equipment, at many points.

Far to the north, these dispatches said, a powerful Red army under Gen. K. A. Meretskov, was developing a major offensive in the Lake Ilmen area of the Leningrad front.

It was admitted that the Germans still made gains, though at frightful cost, in their offensive in the Kerch peninsula of the Crimea.

There was no doubt that at every point along the 1,800-mile line north of the Crimea, the Red army, with hundreds of thousands of freshly trained men and using up-to-the-minute Russian, American and British equipment, held the initiative.

Intrepid guerrillas were surging through forests over a vast area all the way from the Crimea to Leningrad, moving silently and springing with tigerish ferocity by night on isolated German outposts, garrisons and advanced airdromes.

Russia's midnight communique, reporting that the Kharkov advance continued, said the Red army had taken or destroyed at least 150 tanks in 48 hours on that front and had captured many prisoners and large quantities of war materials of all sorts.

Strong as were the German defenses there, consisting of thousands of individual strongpoints, there seemed no doubt that now the entire position was endangered, and their right flank, extending south to the Crimea, might soon be imperiled.

Taking advantage of their first break through the German lines, the Russians fanned out and were reported today to be constantly widening the breach.

It was indicated that Marshal Semyon Timoshenko, by his sudden blow had forestalled a German offensive from Kharkov, and that the war material which his men were taking, had been assembled for the German attack.

Russia admitted that Red forces in the Kerch peninsula had made further withdrawals, fighting stubbornly, before the pressure of numerically superior German forces.

TELLS HOW JAPS CAPTURE BURMA

Writer Reveals 'Too Little and Too Late' Again Cost Allies.

RAF and an AVG force of less than 150 aircraft.

These facts may now be told, since the information no longer is of military value.

Burma was more poorly prepared for war than Malaya and Java. Even so, with great reserves of Allied manpower nearby in China and India, if Burma could have been held it would have been a springboard for a United Nations offensive squarely across the line of Japanese expansion in the south Pacific.

Sometime in December the United Nations strategy went awry. Enthusiasts envisioned at that time huge Chinese armies streaming into Burma immediately. But they did not arrive. Native Burmese ministers protested against possible entrance of the Chinese.

Turbulent Burma, where revolt and mutiny and sedition had written a bloody history in the past decade, was a violent political problem to the British empire. Chungking's offer to share the defense of lower Burma and Rangoon was tentatively rejected.

While battle-tested Chinese regulars stood a thousand miles away in Yunnan province, a few battalions of Burma rifles—raw, uncertain native levies—were all that guarded the long Tennaserin coast across the little Gulf of Martaban from Rangoon.

On the last day of January the real assault began on the wide estuary of the Salween at the back of the Burma rifles. They retreated. The Japanese had bought the 400 miles of Tenasserin coastline in a military bargain sale and were directly menacing Rangoon.

In February one Chinese brigade magically appeared in the Shan states, hiking there on foot. One crack division of the Indian army docked in Rangoon and was rushed overnight by train to the Salween river line. More than a month was to elapse before the Japanese broke into Rangoon on March 8, but in all that time not a single Chinese trooper was sent southward from the Shan states.

Observers agreed that an Indian army division, if helped out by equal number of Chinese, could have kept the Japanese pinned at the Salween indefinitely and have roided Thailand.

In the skies over Rangoon the brilliant defensive exploits of the AVG were almost the only solace in the situation which continued steadily to deteriorate.

What the Allies could have done then with the large American Army Air force now in India makes a bitter item in the war's list of "might have beens."

Because of the inadequate number of troops which were poorly equipped for jungle fighting, British army tactics were confined to a defense of line positions. This was done tenaciously.

No sudden offensive attacks by strong patrols menaced the Japanese rear. The British troop positions were static. The enemy gathered his forces at key points and encircled them and continually forced the British to move back their whole line.

When the Japanese gained Sittang they were practically at the gates of Rangoon. Some 120 American tanks, rushed from the midde East, were hurled against them in the Pegu Salient, but the paddy fields and thick jungles destroyed their mobility.

The Allied military collapse was revealed suddenly in mid-April. The British army's remnants of the Burma division, falling back on the plains of Mandalay, became encircled, while the war-worn Indian division pursued a different route ten miles eastward along the rail line and was unable to come to its assistance.

allowed would be cut down to $9,751. The Mack bid was $9,981 with a net price of $9,524 with discount allowed.

The only other bidder seriously considered, was the American-La-France Foamite corporation of Elmira, N. Y., which offered prices on both three-man and seven-man cabs. The bid on the three-man cab was $9,595, while that on the seven-man cab was $10,820.

Mayor Locke said today that the criticism by Councilman Miller yesterday that the administration had been lax in obtaining a pumper and that the delay had allowed priority restrictions which may prevent the delivery of a pumper "had nothing to do with the awarding of the contract."

Locke said that the Seagrave truck had been selected because the board of control felt that "provision should be made for the future."

Asked why a seven-man cab was needed, Locke said that this would allow firemen to get dressed for fire fighting while on the way to a fire.

"There's a big difference," said the mayor. "Those trucks we have at present are just trucks with fire fighting equipment on them. This truck will be a complete fire fighting plant."

The mayor did not know exactly how many men the city had in its fire department or whether it had sufficient men to man a seven-man cab.

"That's not the point," said the mayor, "We need a truck in which the men can get ready while going to a fire, we don't want them standing out in the rain, dripping wet."

The mayor denied there had been any delay in obtaining a fire pumper. Although council passed an ordinance on Jan. 10 authorizing the city auditor to draw advances upon anticipation taxes, Locke said that he understood the money would not be available until after February.

Councilman Miller pointed out yesterday that half-mill funds approved by more than 7,800 Mansfielders last fall were available after Jan. 1 and that immediate action would have got the city its pumper.

Locke said that it was not until after February that he learned that the funds could have been anticipated and used earlier. He learned this after returning from a vacation in Florida.

The mayor stated that council did not authorize the purchase until March 10 and that priorities restrictions were clamped on soon after.

"I made a trip to Washington at my own expense," said the mayor, "to get the government to relax its restrictions. It's not certain yet whether we can get a pumper. It might be necessary for someone to make another trip to Washington to complete the deal."

The mayor said that another factor in the delay had been his understanding that the city would have to obtain a priority before ordering a truck. On his trip to Washington, the mayor learned that just the opposite was true—that the city would have to order a truck before a ruling would be made on priority rating.

WPB officials at Washington will be contacted before a contract is actually signed, according to the mayor, so that last minute instructions may be obtained on the proper procedure to follow to obtain a priority rating. It was expected that the contract would be signed today.

Although Mayor Locke said that Chief Seeburger had made no special recommendations, Seeburger stated that he had told Locke and Wolff that "all three bidding companies made a truck on which you can't go wrong" but that he had recommended the Mack as being "the sturdiest."

Chief Seeburger also said that he did not believe the department would have enough men on duty to occupy the seven seats provided on the new pumper.

"We're lucky if we have enough to put two men on each machine," said Seeburger. "I'm afraid that new pumper will no longer be a modern one, when we have seven men on it."

Service Director Wolff said the seven-man cab had been selected because it offered greater safety for firemen. He said there was a danger that firemen would be injured while on the way to fires on the three-man cab trucks. The department's records show no mention of a fireman being injured by falling off a truck on the way to a fire, according to Chief Seeburger.

Wolff said that one of the factors in the favor of the Seagrave company was that quick replacement of parts could be made from Columbus.

The fire chief said that he had already received some complaints of storage of gasoline in unsafe containers above ground in quantities of more than five gallons, which is specifically prohibited by law. Chief Seeburger said that these complaints were being checked.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, MAY 15, 1942.

People with a "martyr complex" may have a good time doing without things.

Hitler started with burning books and now he aims to burn what remains of civilization.

There's probably more stewing and fussing among people safe at home than among the fellows who have to do the fighting.

Gasoline Rationing Problem

GASOLINE rationing, which has been started in seventeen eastern states because of transportation difficulties, is likely to spread over the entire country by July 1, according to more or less-official spokesmen for the government.

The problem, it appears, is not one of supply, but of distribution, and it is the eastern states that are most difficult to serve from the southwestern fields.

It is probably a quite natural attitude among a number of people in the affected states that if there must be rationing it should apply to all parts of the country, but people living elsewhere insist that such procedure would be unfair and absurd and that residents of midwest and western states should not be penalized because of the unfortunate situation in the east.

Just what will be done about it has not yet been determined —but it's a safe guess that the unlimited use of gasoline for purely pleasure driving is unlikely to extend far into the future in this part of the country.

Week-End for Thrifty Buying

THRIFTY BUYING of available merchandise reflects a common sense attitude toward wartime conditions and the customary Mansfield Days, sponsored by the Retail Merchants association, serve to emphasize present opportunities to provide for personal and family needs in an entirely normal and justifiable way.

While some articles are temporarily off the market, and others are being rationed because of shortages, there is still an abundance of needed merchandise in Mansfield stores at reasonable prices—as was convincingly shown by the advertising in yesterday's News-Journal.

The current slogan, "Shop in Mansfield—Save tires—Save Gasoline," serves the good purpose of directing attention to this meritorious practice during the emergency, but the excellence of Mansfield stores, the wide range of stocks shown and the consistently fair prices maintained, make a permanent appeal which has been effective in steadily extending Mansfield's trading area throughout north-central Ohio.

Today and tomorrow, as "Mansfield Days", offer fine opportunity to make seasonable purchases of merchandise at considerable savings and a shopping trip through Mansfield stores will reveal the extent to which individual and home needs can be satisfactorily met.

Save tires, gasoline and MONEY by buying in Mansfield stores!

Overestimated Personal Liberty

AUTHORITY of government has rested so lightly on present-day young people in the United States that it is not surprising to find some of them overestimating the extent of freedom they have been accorded.

As, for instance, in the case of the 22-year-old Shelby boy who has just been sentenced to two years in a federal prison for violating the selective service act.

It is reported that he refused to fill out his questionnaire or "to have anything to do with the selective service system," because he "did not believe in war."

While legitimate "conscientious objectors" are not required to engage in actual hostilities they are under compulsion to respond to the call of draft boards and to conform to selective service provisions, and, fortunately, there are only a comparatively few young men who do not voluntarily comply with this obligation of American citizenship.

Cliff-Jumpers

THE Japanese are obviously "tough babies," but an observer must make reservations. They are great soldiers when they are winning.

They have been trained in the patriotic doctrine of invincibility. They believe they are the best fighting men in the world. Having not been seriously defeated for ages, they take their superiority for granted. And that is where they make a serious mistake, all the way from the top command down to the private soldier.

According to close observers, the Japanese troops are trained and conditioned only for victory. Not understanding defeat, they are seriously handicapped in the presence of a stronger force. They do not know how to retreat. They lack the ability of their enemies to fight and run, to defend themselves while walking backward and "live to fight another day."

The Japs, too, have a strain of hysteria in them and are subject to panic, like birds or animals, in a situation they do not understand. So incredible things happen. When caught between the enemy and a high cliff, instead of surrendering, they turned, ran and leaped over the cliff.

If this is at all typical, a great deal of Japanese cliff-jumping may be expected before the war is over.

Objections To Conscripting Women

SUCH an abrupt change from peace to war as was made by this country might result in the nation becoming too military in its set-up, even in these times. Men must be drafted and trained for war service, but registering the women and making them subject to military call is another matter. The president has vetoed a suggestion from Mrs. Roosevelt on that point—wisely, as most Americans are likely to think. The militant women themselves may be going too far in their martial zeal.

The spirit shown, however, is admirable, and already in this war they are giving valuable service in many ways. It may be granted also that they have earned a right to wear military uniforms in unarmed services.

But if the question of militarization were put to the American public, men and women alike would probably say that there are enough men to do the fighting, and it is better in every way that they should do it. Also that women should not be drafted or otherwise pushed into non-combatant war jobs in offices or factories against their will. Not yet, anyway.

BETTER NOT WAIT MUCH LONGER

Congressmen Becoming Worried

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—There is much uneasiness among members of the house, and among the senators facing renomination and re-election this year. It is due to increasing evidence of popular resentment—resentment not leveled at the conduct of the war itself, but what so many people think is amateurish bungling.

As it comes to individual congressmen (always remembering that your average congressman is the best listener at the keyhole for what his own constituents are thinking; that he is a professional at this business, not an amateur) the irritation is not over the fact that sacrifices are imposed, but at what individual citizens regard as lack of intelligence in imposing them.

For instance rubber. There is less complaint about that than about sugar. People can understand very easily that the main sources of our rubber have been cut off—that it takes time to develop new sources, be they synthetic or natural rubber from different territory. But they KNOW that the department of agricultural has been limiting sugar producers inside the United States—continued to do so up to 1942.

* * *

ACTUALLY, of course, if one assumes that crop curtailment is a sound plan for dealing with what was the agricultural problem in this country, there is a good defense there. The people of this country, despite all the clamor opponents could kick up about killing the little pigs, etc., had voted twice, overwhelmingly, their approval of the New Deal, which of necessity included its agricultural program. So people who in 1936 and 1940 voted for the re-election of F. D. R. really ought not to be too critical of sugar quotas in Louisiana and Florida and in the beet states being cut down in 1941.

But they ARE. To expect too much logic in politics is to get ready to pay political bets if you like to back your judgment.

Most of the shrewd congressmen who keep on getting re-elected know this. They don't figure out what, logically, the people OUGHT to think and act accordingly. No indeed—they keep at least one ear to the ground all the time, trying to find out what the people are thinking, and try to keep just ahead of that—and not too far ahead.

* * *

YOUR average voter is likely to be a little unreasonable as well as not too strictly confined, in his mental process, to logic. For example irritation on the part of many easterners on the gasoline rationing—because the folks close to the oil wells can have more, despite the fact that the only trouble about gasoline is not production, but transportation. So the only valid reason for restricting gas consumption close to the wells is to save rubber, not fuel.

But, the mail to congressmen shows, too many people are getting sore over too many details of government administration for the good of candidates this year, so the boys on Capitol Hill are worried.

That's why they want a long recess of congress, so they can go home and attempt to save by personal contact their places in the sun, endangered by popular resentment over things their voters may think they ought to have fixed. And your congressman knows it's a poor defense to say he was helpless. The voters want a man representing them who is NOT helpless.

TODAY IN HISTORY

May 15—Congress this day, May 15, 1862 created the Department of Agriculture. It was not until 1889 that the department's commissioner was renamed Secretary of Agriculture and made a member of the President's Cabinet. In this capacity he is charged with the work of promoting agriculture in its broadest sense. He exercises general supervision and control over the affairs of the department and formulates the general policies to be pursued by its various offices.

Heights and Depths

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

IF YOU are like the rest of us, you're mighty ambitious about your future. You may, you admit, be a little nicked along the edges now, but some day you'll be all kinds of a hero. Some day, when your chance comes, you're going to show the world what a gold-plated wonder you really are. I wonder! I've had those dreams myself . . . yet, when it came to putting them into execution I was usually hiding under the spare-room bed. For it's one thing to dream of the heights . . . and quite another to pay the price to attain them!

I often think of Mary Brent Whiteside's verses:

"Who has known heights and depths shall not again
Know peace, not as the calm heart knows
Low, ivied walls; a garden close;
And though he tread the humble ways of men
He shall not speak the common tongue again.

Who has known heights shall bear forevermore
An incommunicable thing
That hurts his heart, as if a wing
Beat at the portal, challenging;
And yet—lured by the gleam his vision wore—
Who once has trodden stars seeks peace no more."

"Who has known heights and depths shall not again know peace—" I think of those lines when I hear our plans for the future . . . our hunger for "the good old days" . . . our desperate longing for the sweet security we once experienced. Mind you, I clamor as loud and as noisily as the next fellow; I grow as homesick and disgusted. Yet even so I know that Mary Brent Whiteside was right.

"Who has known heights and depths shall not again know peace—and though he tread the humble ways of men, he shall not speak the common tongue again.

Loneliness, that's the price you pay for wisdom. Solitude, that's the price you pay for pride . . . for courage and understanding. Wisdom, courage and understanding, these are the great adventures of life. We may all have them. Even the weak and most obscure may have them. But none of us can have them without paying the price.

WE CAN NEVER BE THE SAME AGAIN, WE WHO HAVE DARED TO LIVE BEYOND THE NARROW LIMITS OF OURSELVES . . . WE WHO HAVE DARED TO MEASURE OUR STRENGTH WITH THE GODS.

Never again will we fit into the comfortable home plan nor ever again "speak the common language." And yet a certain glory and pride will burn in us like an unquenchable flame. For we will have seen, if only for a second, the everlasting peaks.

DON'T BE AFRAID TO REACH BEYOND YOURSELF! DON'T BE AFRAID TO DO SOMETHING RECKLESSLY NOBLE AND BRAVE AND FINE! DARE TO WALK WITH GOD, EVEN THOUGH YOU MUST CARRY HIS CROSS IN PENALTY.

Russia Ignored Warning By Hull Weeks Before Germany's Attack

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State Hull, who has a mountaineer's long memory, keeps in the drawer of his desk a clipping from the Russian newpsaper Pravda, which about a year ago said some very uncomplimentary things about him. Secretary Hull sometimes takes the clipping out of the drawer and shows it to friends.

"Last June," he says, "I asked Sumner Welles to see the Russian ambassador, Mr. Oumansky, to warn his government that Germany was going to attack Russia. This was almost a month before the attack, and we had very reliable information that Hitler was going to turn against his ally.

"Several days afterward, this appeared in the paper."

Whereupon Mr. Hull exhibits a translation of the Pravda article with the headline: "Senile Capitalist Stirs Trouble Between Russia and Germany.

About three weeks later the Russian-German war started.

"Why didn't you talk to Ambassador Oumansky yourself?" one friend asked Mr. Hull.

"I did not like that man," was his prompt reply.

Note:—Many others agreed with Secretary Hull about ex-Ambassador Oumansky, so much so that Stalin recalled him. His successor, Ambassador Litvinoff, is highly popular.

GOVERNOR DAN MOODY of Texas telephoned from Austin to a Roosevelt cabinet member in Washington asking whether Texas rumors were true that the administration would support Judge Jimmy Allred for governor against Senator "Pappy" O'Daniel. The cabinet member told Moody that officially the White House would keep hands off, but gave him a pointed hint that it would have been much better to have one candidate—Allred—in the field against O'Daniel, instead of both Moody and Allred. (Roosevelt always has been a strong Allred rooter, will continue to be.)

Gen. Stanley Embick of the Joint Army-Navy board has been a good enough sport to admit to Alaskan officials: "I was against the Alaskan highway last October but I admit I was wrong."

War Production.

THE over-all picture on the war production front continues to be cheering. Industry and labor are doing a great job. In April, the output of war supplies hit a level which, if maintained the rest of the year, will reach the stupendous volume, in terms of money, of $40,000,000,000.

This is very good news, indeed. It marks a tremendous change from OPM days only a few months back. Yet, privately, WPB insiders are shouting no hurrahs.

They feel strongly that the rate of production should be much greater. Also, that it would be greater, except for one factor: Donald Nelson's failure to house-clean his staff of certain key dollar-a-year assistants who are still thinking in terms of business interests first.

These men are charged with sole responsibility for a number of serious bottlenecks—including lags in the flow of raw materials, scrap collection, plant conversion, and the integration of thousands of little plants, with vast producing potentialities, into the war program.

Note:—WPB chiefs long under fire on these grounds are Philip Reed, head of the Bureau of Industries Branches, W. H. Harrison, director of the Production Division; Lessing Rosenwald, in charge of scrap collections; and C. H. Matthieson, Priorities chief.

* * *

Old Story.

THESE vital weaknesses in the production program are nothing new. They were at the bottom of the tragic failure of OPM.

What is new is that after five months of war and heavy U. S. losses, these failings have not been remedied and the men largely responsible for them remain in control.

For example: After the explosive resignation from WPB of Robert Guthrie, Kentucky business man, because of the "business as usual" attitude of high WPB officials, an order was belatedly issued to halt radio production on April 23. That was three weeks ago, but radio sets are still being turned out in large numbers.

After the stop order was issued with a fanfare of publicity, the order was quietly modified without any publicity, to permit the production of an additional 400,000 radio sets.

Similarly, the typewriter industry, which could be converted in a few weeks to producing large quantities of desperately needed airplane parts, is still permitted to roll along in high gear making typewriters. There are many other cases of big resources in machines, materials and labor going to waste in this manner.

Note: Hundreds of typewriters are lying idle in government offices; plenty of them right in WPB.

* * *

Nelson's Weak Spot.

NELSON'S failure to plug up the soft spots in his staff is due to his one major weakness—his reluctance to fire people, a trait he shares with the president.

Nelson is a man of great talents. He has exceptional executive ability, thinks fast and clearly, and knows his job thoroughly. He is broad-gauged, has liberal views on social and economic problems, and has the capacity to win and hold the loyalty of those around him.

But, like the president, Nelson can't be ruthless when it comes to getting rid of inadequate assistants.

The president's staff, cabinet and administration are cluttered up with proven incompetents and misfits, but he keeps them on and Nelson is guilty of the same soft-heartedness.

Nelson might well follow the example of Price Administrator Leon Henderson and Lt. Gen Brehon Somervell, chief of the Army's Service and Supply. If an assistant doesn't measure up, they fire him regardless of personal relations or feelings. That's why they have the ablest staffs in the war organization and the reputation for always delivering the goods.

Note:—The five best executives under Nelson are William Batt, director of the Materials Division; Douglas C. MacKeachie, Purchasing chief; Robert Nathan, head of the Planning Division; Frank Folsom and A. J. Browning, deputy purchasing directors assigned to the army and navy.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—You know the type. They stick around the street corners and whine. They bob up in the nightcourts on assorted charges, usually for begging illegally. They look dirty. They leave you with the impression that they haven't got much blood. They're a nuisance. When the law gets them, they are usually put away for awhile.

I'm talking about the professional beggars who do not bother to get permission from the police to do their chiseling. There was one in the courts last night. His name was Frank. Frank was fifty and had been picked up in a subway entrance for wheedling dimes out of pedestrians. He looks dirty. He looked unwanted.

But do not feel sorry for Frank. He has more money than you. Weep for those who need tears, and a hand-out. Frank had a tidy little bankroll of $5,000, which he kept in a mattress in a disheveled Brooklyn cellar, because the banks weren't safe enough. He also owned a piece of property in Brooklyn. It was his third offense. Twice before he had been warned about begging on the streets. Now he is in the work house, moaning at fate.

* * *

NOT long ago they got Annie too. Annie came from Jersey and she played the side streets around Columbus Circle. She did all right by herself. She had a peculiar appeal to her face and her greying hair that would make a pedestrian break his stride long enough to toss a quarter into her lap. Annie owned four houses in Jersey and an automobile. But she's in the hoosegow now.

It is no longer news in the dog-bites-man sense to relate these little episodes out of human nature. New York is full of them. Wasn't Tony, the Battery's famed bootblack, rich when he died? Something like $20,000 in the banks, and in this Tony differed from those who preferred to hide their coin in old newspapers or between mattresses. Tony believed in the banks. Several of them. He had accounts in at least three New York banks. His cash assets were in excess of $20,000.

Yet every day of his life he was on his knees on the hard pavement of the Battery, shining shoes, shining anybody's shoes, for a dime, wiping the bootblack on his hands, then on his thighs, and grinning happily. He got big tips because he had worked up a tipping clientele among cutter operators, maritime authorities, and ship captains. He knew everybody. When he died they laid him out handsomely. There were floral tributes from brokers and shipping masters.

* * *

BUT the strangest story of rags to riches was that poor old Bowery bum who found a stack of important notes in Wall street, received a handsome reward, and three days later became insane. In the interim he had dined lavishly on steaks and wine. Medical men explained his derangement in this wise: unused to so many vitamins, the sudden rush of rich foodstuffs enriched the bloodstream so hurriedly that it affected his brain.

A Farmer's Diary

Looking Backward

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I STOPPED by an abandoned house and barn that stood beside a narrow lane. Each single wagon track had become a ditch near the low bank, which made the drive impassible. I left my car along the improved highway, and walked.

Some pieces of old post fence lay almost buried in the sod. I tore away the sharpened end of a chestnut rail. The mortised post, broken in the center was very solid. I found it was a straight grained locust stick.

The house at one time had a lovely setting in the midst of fruit and forest trees. Two cedar stumps were along the yard, and remnants of other rotting stumps showed where an orchard had stood. The house was gray and unpainted, with wide colonial windows boarded up. It had a large chimney in the center and remnants of scroll work showed along the gables. Along the southern side, I noticed, protruding from the mat of last year's grass, the corners of bricks that had marked a flower bed about three feet wide. Hollyhocks were more than a foot in height; scarlet peony shoots emerged from the soil in three different places. Purple violets, moist and fragrant, grew out from the crevices in the walk.

At one place, where the weather-beaten siding was ripped by a recent storm, the well-built framing of the structure showed — hand-hewn from oak.

The old barn was like an open book. One large door that closed the west side of the sagging floor was hanging only by the corner, held up by a faithful wrought iron post and the female portion of a hinge. Fortunately the warped old hickory rafters supported a metal roof that did not leak.

On the hayless mows, an aged farmer must have left his tools. An old plow was set in the farthest corner. It had the ancient self-sharpening point. A cutter sleigh, with thills tilted back, stood near the center. A binder with a frame nearly all of wood, reinforced with straps of steel, stood on one side. A broad single shovel and two double shovel plows stood with their beams upraised, in a common corner. An ancient fanning mill was near the granary door, its beveled hopper higher than my shoulders. A one horse corn planter with dual wheels behind, lay sideways near the binder. Two long handled wooden rakes with broken teeth hung from a beam.

I stood there among these relics, and completely forgot the rapid pace of modern farming, while I lived happily in the past. The roar of a tractor in an adjoining field brought me back to the present. I walked thoughtfully up the rutty drive to my car, reflecting on the mighty changes in farm methods that this chance visit had disclosed.

'DOCTORS MAYO' ON LIBRARY'S NEW BOOK LIST

Volume Tells Story of Three Men Remarkable in Field of Medicine, Surgery.

The warm human story of three remarkable men of world renown is set down in "The Doctors Mayo,' by H. B. Clapsattle, a new book now available at the Mansfield Public Library.

Clapsattle traces the growth of a small town practice to an institution of world renown and his book is a significant study of a century's advances in surgery and medicines. More than that it is a profile of William Worral Mayo and his famous sons, Will and Charlie.

Wide Margins by George Palmer Putnam is the unconventional memoir of a publisher who didn't believe in the armchair theory of book publishing. Though it is rich in literatary anecdote and personalities of the past two decades—William Beebe, Richard E. Byrd, Roy Chapman Andrews, Rockwell Kent, Amelia Earhart, etc.—it is, above all, the story of a man who made his profession fit his own adventurous vitality.

Although as modern as any gadget from Detroit, THE MAKING OF TOMORROW by Raoul de Roussy de Sales is distinctly in the classic tradition. The result of many years in thought and experience, it is an interpretation of the American way of life and also an analysis of the way of life of the whole Western world, now at war with the totalitarian states .

The Last Time I Saw Paris by Eliot Paul is an intimate human document which brings back to life a group of French men and women who typify in all their nobility and degradation, a civilization the world can ill afford to lose. To the lovable people on the rue de la Huchette where Mr. Paul lived for a number of years, he devotes this book—it being the story of that street.

OTHER NON-FICTION: THE OPERA by Brockway and Weinstock; THIS IS YOUR WAR by Childs; BUSINESS AS USUAL by Stone; GREAT ADVENTURES OF PEDAGOGY by Sonderson; HARPERS ENGLISH GRAMMAR by Opdycke; FRESH WATER FISHING by Shoemaker; TOOLS O FWAR by Newman; HERBS, THEIR CULTURE AND USE by Clarkson; MAGNESIUM AND ITS ALLOYS by Haughton; THE OFICER'S GUIDE.

I REMEMBER CHRISTINE by Oscar Lewis is an ironical tale of a celebrated California family—of its founder, a shrewd trader, empire builder, and sinner; of his very proper son and his iconoclastic daughter—and of the incidents that crowded their lives during almost a century of turbulent and picturesque history. San Francisco from the 1850's to the present provides the background for this unusual story.

FIRE IN SUMMER by Robert Ramsey is a novel with a southern locale, about an angry man, never reconciled to any aspect of his life. He quarrels with his wife and children; he hates his employer, the relief organization which tries to help him, and most of all, Negroes, with an unrelenting fury.

THE SCARLET IMPOSTER by Dennis Wheatley is a "thriller" which centers in the historical episode of the attempt to bomb Hitler in a Munich beer hall, and pursues its intricate way across warring Europe through a maze of plots and counterplots, espionage and counter-espionage, sabotage and counter-sabotage.

OTHER FICTION: HIS OWN PLACE by Freeman; THE D. A. COOKS A GOOSE by Gardner; RHAPSODY IN GREEN by Carfrae.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Readers above the fourth grade will find exciting adventure in two new stories in the Children's department. The first tells of an incident on an island near our own shores and the other describes how the Norwegian gold was saved from the Nazis less than two years ago.

STORM ON THE ISLAND, by Eleanor Frances Lattimore — Rose Ann lived in a snug little house on an island. Her father was a planter and there were only a few neighbors. One day it rained very hard and toward evening a very bad wind storm joined the rain and uprooted the chinaberry tree that had stood in front of the snug little house. After the storm Rose Ann with her father and brother called on the neighbors to bears news of the storm and to help them if they were in trouble.

SNOW TREASURE, by Marie McSwigan—It is a matter of record that in June, 1940 a Norwegian freighter arrived in Baltimore with a load of gold bullion worth $9,000,000. The captain told the story of how a group of children had pulled the gold nuggets on their sleds past the Nazi centries to where it might be loaded on a camouflaged ship during the German occupation of Riswyk. An air of mystery and adventure fills this retelling of that story of Peter and his young friends in the Riswyk school.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, MAY 15, 1942.

People with a "martyr complex" may have a good time doing without things.

Hitler started with burning books and now he aims to burn what remains of civilization.

There's probably more stewing and fussing among people safe at home than among the fellows who have to do the fighting.

Gasoline Rationing Problem

GASOLINE rationing, which has been started in seventeen eastern states because of transportation difficulties, is likely to spread over the entire country by July 1, according to more or less-official spokesmen for the government.

The problem, it appears, is not one of supply, but of distribution, and it is the eastern states that are most difficult to serve from the southwestern fields.

It is probably a quite natural attitude among a number of people in the affected states that if there must be rationing it should apply to all parts of the country, but people living elsewhere insist that such procedure would be unfair and absurd and that residents of midwest and western states should not be penalized because of the unfortunate situation in the east.

Just what will be done about it has not yet been determined —but it's a safe guess that the unlimited use of gasoline for purely pleasure driving is unlikely to extend far into the future in this part of the country.

Week-End for Thrifty Buying

THRIFTY BUYING of available merchandise reflects a common sense attitude toward wartime conditions and the customary Mansfield Days, sponsored by the Retail Merchants association, serve to emphasize present opportunities to provide for personal and family needs in an entirely normal and justifiable way.

While some articles are temporarily off the market, and others are being rationed because of shortages, there is still an abundance of needed merchandise in Mansfield stores at reasonable prices—as was convincingly shown by the advertising in yesterday's News-Journal.

The current slogan, "Shop in Mansfield—Save tires—Save Gasoline," serves the good purpose of directing attention to this meritorious practice during the emergency, but the excellence of Mansfield stores, the wide range of stocks shown and the consistently fair prices maintained, make a permanent appeal which has been effective in steadily extending Mansfield's trading area throughout north-central Ohio.

Today and tomorrow, as "Mansfield Days", offer fine opportunity to make seasonable purchases of merchandise at considerable savings and a shopping trip through Mansfield stores will reveal the extent to which individual and home needs can be satisfactorily met.

Save tires, gasoline and MONEY by buying in Mansfield stores!

Overestimated Personal Liberty

AUTHORITY of government has rested so lightly on present-day young people in the United States that it is not surprising to find some of them overestimating the extent of freedom they have been accorded.

As, for instance, in the case of the 22-year-old Shelby boy who has just been sentenced to two years in a federal prison for violating the selective service act.

It is reported that he refused to fill out his questionnaire or "to have anything to do with the selective service system," because he "did not believe in war."

While legitimate "conscientious objectors" are not required to engage in actual hostilities they are under compulsion to respond to the call of draft boards and to conform to selective service provisions, and, fortunately, there are only a comparatively few young men who do not voluntarily comply with this obligation of American citizenship.

Cliff-Jumpers

THE Japanese are obviously "tough babies," but an observer must make reservations. They are great soldiers when they are winning.

They have been trained in the patriotic doctrine of invincibility. They believe they are the best fighting men in the world. Having not been seriously defeated for ages, they take their superiority for granted. And that is where they make a serious mistake, all the way from the top command down to the private soldier.

According to close observers, the Japanese troops are trained and conditioned only for victory. Not understanding defeat, they are seriously handicapped in the presence of a stronger force. They do not know how to retreat. They lack the ability of their enemies to fight and run, to defend themselves while walking backward and "live to fight another day."

The Japs, too, have a strain of hysteria in them and are subject to panic, like birds or animals, in a situation they do not understand. So incredible things happen. When caught between the enemy and a high cliff, instead of surrendering, they turned, ran and leaped over the cliff.

If this is at all typical, a great deal of Japanese cliff-jumping may be expected before the war is over.

Objections To Conscripting Women

SUCH an abrupt change from peace to war as was made by this country might result in the nation becoming too military in its set-up, even in these times. Men must be drafted and trained for war service, but registering the women and making them subject to military call is another matter. The president has vetoed a suggestion from Mrs. Roosevelt on that point—wisely, as most Americans are likely to think. The militant women themselves may be going too far in their martial zeal.

The spirit shown, however, is admirable, and already in this war they are giving valuable service in many ways. It may be granted also that they have earned a right to wear military uniforms in unarmed services.

But if the question of militarization were put to the American public, men and women alike would probably say that there are enough men to do the fighting, and it is better in every way that they should do it. Also that women should not be drafted or otherwise pushed into non-combatant war jobs in offices or factories against their will. Not yet, anyway.

Congressmen Becoming Worried

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—There is much uneasiness among members of the house, and among the senators facing renomination and re-election this year. It is due to increasing evidence of popular resentment—resentment not leveled at the conduct of the war itself, but what so many people think is amateurish bungling.

As it comes to individual congressmen (always remembering that your average congressman is the best listener at the keyhole for what his own constituents are thinking; that he is a professional at this business, not an amateur) the irritation is not over the fact that sacrifices are imposed, but at what individual citizens regard as lack of intelligence in imposing them.

For instance rubber. There is less complaint about that than about sugar. People can understand very easily that the main sources of our rubber have been cut off—that it takes time to develop new sources, be they synthetic or natural rubber from different territory. But they KNOW that the department of agricultural has been limiting sugar producers inside the United States—continued to do so up to 1942.

* * *

ACTUALLY, of course, if one assumes that crop curtailment is a sound plan for dealing with what was the agricultural problem in this country, there is a good defense there. The people of this country, despite all the clamor opponents could kick up about killing the little pigs, etc., had voted twice, overwhelmingly, their approval of the New Deal, which of necessity included its agricultural program. So people who in 1936 and 1940 voted for the re-election of F. D. R. really ought not to be too critical of sugar quotas in Louisiana and Florida and in the beet states being cut down in 1941.

But they ARE. To expect too much logic in politics is to get ready to pay political bets if you like to back your judgment.

Most of the shrewd congressmen who keep on getting re-elected know this. They don't figure out what, logically, the people OUGHT to think and act accordingly. No indeed—they keep at least one ear to the ground all the time, trying to find out what the people are thinking, and try to keep just ahead of that—and not too far ahead.

* * *

YOUR average voter is likely to be a little unreasonable as well as not too strictly confined, in his mental process, to logic. For example irritation on the part of many easterners on the gasoline rationing—because the folks close to the oil wells can have more, despite the fact that the only trouble about gasoline is not production, but transportation. So the only valid reason for restricting gas consumption close to the wells is to save rubber, not fuel.

But, the mail to congressmen shows, too many people are getting sore over too many details of government administration for the good of candidates this year, so the boys on Capitol Hill are worried.

That's why they want a long recess of congress, so they can go home and attempt to save by personal contact their places in the sun, endangered by popular resentment over things their voters may think they ought to have fixed. And your congressman knows it's a poor defense to say he was helpless. The voters want a man representing them who is NOT helpless.

TODAY IN HISTORY

May 15—Congress this day, May 15, 1862 created the Department of Agriculture. It was not until 1889 that the department's commissioner was renamed Secretary of Agriculture and made a member of the President's Cabinet. In this capacity he is charged with the work of promoting agriculture in its broadest sense. He exercises general supervision and control over the affairs of the department and formulates the general policies to be pursued by its various offices.

Heights and Depths

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

IF YOU are like the rest of us, you're mighty ambitious about your future. You may, you admit, be a little nicked along the edges now, but some day you'll be all kinds of a hero. Some day, when your chance comes, you're going to show the world what a gold-plated wonder you really are. I wonder! I've had those dreams myself . . . yet, when it came to putting them into execution I was usually hiding under the spare-room bed. For it's one thing to dream of the heights . . . and quite another to pay the price to attain them!

I often think of Mary Brent Whiteside's verses:

"Who has known heights and depths shall not again
Know peace, not as the calm heart knows
Low, wied walls; a garden close;
And though he tread the humble ways of men
He shall not speak the common tongue again.

Who has known heights shall bear forevermore
An incommunicable thing
That hurts his heart, as if a wing
Beat at the portal, challenging:
And yet — lured by the gleam his vision wore—
Who once has trodden stars seeks peace no more."

"Who has known heights and depths shall not again know peace—" I think of those lines when I hear our plans for the future . . . our hunger for "the good old days" . . . our desperate longing for the sweet security we once experienced. Mind you, I clamor as loud and as noisily as the next fellow; I grow as homesick and disgusted. Yet even so I know that Mary Brent Whiteside was right.

"Who has known heights and depths shall not again know peace—and though he tread the humble ways of men, he shall not speak the common tongue again.

Loneliness, that's the price you pay for wisdom. Solitude, that's the price you pay for pride . . . for courage and understanding. Wisdom, courage and understanding, these are the great adventures of life. We may all have them. Even the weak and most obscure may have them. But none of us can have them without paying the price.

WE CAN NEVER BE THE SAME AGAIN, WE WHO HAVE DARED TO LIVE BEYOND THE NARROW LIMITS OF OURSELVES . . . WE WHO HAVE DARED TO MEASURE OUR STRENGTH WITH THE GODS.

Never again will we fit into the comfortable home plan nor ever again "speak the common language." And yet a certain glory and pride will burn in us like an unquenchable flame. For we will have seen, if only for a second, the everlasting peaks.

DON'T BE AFRAID TO REACH BEYOND YOURSELF! DON'T BE AFRAID TO DO SOMETHING RECKLESSLY NOBLE AND BRAVE AND FINE! DARE TO WALK WITH GOD, EVEN THOUGH YOU MUST CARRY HIS CROSS IN PENALTY.

Russia Ignored Warning By Hull Weeks Before Germany's Attack

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State Hull, who has a mountaineer's long memory, keeps in the drawer of his desk a clipping from the Russian newpsaper Pravda, which about a year ago said some very uncomplimentary things about him. Secretary Hull sometimes takes the clipping out of the drawer and shows it to friends.

"Last June," he says, "I asked Sumner Welles to see the Russian ambassador, Mr. Oumansky, to warn his government that Germany was going to attack Russia. This was almost a month before the attack, and we had very reliable information that Hitler was going to turn against his ally.

"Several days afterward, this appeared in the paper."

Whereupon Mr. Hull exhibits a translation of the Pravda article with the headline: "Senile Capitalist Stirs Trouble Between Russia and Germany.

About three weeks later the Russian-German war started.

"Why didn't you talk to Ambassador Oumansky yourself?" one friend asked Mr. Hull.

"I did not like that man," was his prompt reply.

Note:—Many others agreed with Secretary Hull about ex-Ambassador Oumansky, so much so that Stalin recalled him. His successor, Ambassador Litvinoff, is highly popular.

GOVERNOR DAN MOODY of Texas telephoned from Austin to a Roosevelt cabinet member in Washington asking whether Texas rumors were true that the administration would support Judge Jimmy Allred for governor against Senator "Pappy" O'Daniel. The cabinet member told Moody that officially the White House would keep hands off, but gave him a pointed hint that it would have been much better to have one candidate—Allred—in the field against O'Daniel, instead of both Moody and Allred. (Roosevelt always has been a strong Allred rooter, will continue to be.)

Gen. Stanley Embick of the Joint Army-Navy board has been a good enough sport to admit to Alaskan officials: "I was against the Alaskan highway last October but I admit I was wrong."

* * *

War Production.

THE over-all picture on the war production front continues to be cheering. Industry and labor are doing a great job. In April, the output of war supplies hit a level which, if maintained the rest of the year, will reach the stupendous volume, in terms of money, of $40,000,000,000.

This is very good news, indeed. It marks a tremendous change from OPM days only a few months back. Yet, privately, WPB insiders are shouting no hurrahs.

They feel strongly that the rate of production should be much greater. Also, that it would be greater, except for one factor: Donald Nelson's failure to house-clean his staff of certain key dollar-a-year assistants who are still thinking in terms of business interests first.

These men are charged with sole responsibility for a number of serious bottlenecks—including lags in the flow of raw materials, scrap collection, plant conversion, and the integration of thousands of little plants, with vast producing potentialities, into the war program.

Note:—WPB chiefs long under fire on these grounds are Philip Reed, head of the Bureau of Industries Branches, W. H. Harrison, director of the Production Division; Lessing Rosenwald, in charge of scrap collections; and C. H. Matthieson, Priorities chief.

* * *

Old Story.

THESE vital weaknesses in the production program are nothing new. They were at the bottom of the tragic failure of OPM.

What is new is that after five months of war and heavy U. S. losses, these failings have not been remedied and the men largely responsible for them remain in control.

For example: After the explosive resignation from WPB of Robert Guthrie, Kentucky business man, because of the "business as usual" attitude of high WPB officials, an order was belatedly issued to halt radio production on April 23. That was three weeks ago, but radio sets are still being turned out in large numbers.

After the stop order was issued with a fanfare of publicity, the order was quietly modified without any publicity, to permit the production of an additional 400,000 radio sets.

Similarly, the typewriter industry, which could be converted in a few weeks to producing large quantities of desperately needed airplane parts, is still permitted to roll along in high gear making typewriters. There are many other cases of big resources in machines, materials and labor going to waste in this manner.

Note: Hundreds of typewriters are lying idle in government offices; plenty of them right in WPB.

* * *

Nelson's Weak Spot.

NELSON'S failure to plug up the soft spots in his staff is due to his one major weakness—his reluctance to fire people, a trait he shares with the president.

Nelson is a man of great talents. He has exceptional executive ability, thinks fast and clearly, and knows his job thoroughly. He is broad-gauged, has liberal views on social and economic problems, and has the capacity to win and hold the loyalty of those around him.

But, like the president, Nelson can't be ruthless when it comes to getting rid of inadequate assistants.

The president's staff, cabinet and administration are cluttered up with proven incompetents and misfits, but he keeps them on and Nelson is guilty of the same soft-heartedness.

Nelson might well follow the example of Price Administrator Leon Henderson and Lt. Gen Brehon Somervell, chief of the Army's Service and Supply. If an assistant doesn't measure up, they fire him regardless of personal relations or feelings. That's why they have the ablest staffs in the war organization and the reputation for always delivering the goods.

Note:—The five best executives under Nelson are William Batt, director of the Materials Division; Douglas C. MacKeachie, Purchasing chief; Robert Nathan, head of the Planning Division; Frank Folsom and A. J. Browning, deputy purchasing directors assigned to the army and navy.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—You know the type. They stick around the street corners and whine. They bob up in the nightcourts on assorted charges, usually for begging illegally. They look dirty. They leave you with the impression that they haven't got much blood. They're a nuisance. When the law gets them, they are usually put away for awhile.

I'm talking about the professional beggars who do not bother to get permission from the police to do their chiseling. There was one in the courts last night. His name was Frank. Frank was fifty and had been picked up in a subway entrance for wheedling dimes out of pedestrians. He looks dirty. He looked unwanted.

But do not feel sorry for Frank. He has more money than you. Weep for those who need tears, and a hand-out. Frank had a tidy little bankroll of $5,000, which he kept in a mattress in a disheveled Brooklyn cellar, because the banks weren't safe enough. He also owned a piece of property in Brooklyn. It was his third offense. Twice before he had been warned about begging on the streets. Now he is in the work house, moaning at fate.

* * *

NOT long ago they got Annie too. Annie came from Jersey and she played the side streets around Columbus Circle. She did all right by herself. She had a peculiar appeal to her face and her greying hair that would make a pedestrian break his stride long enough to toss a quarter into her lap. Annie owned four houses in Jersey and an automobile. But she's in the hoosegow now.

It is no longer news in the dog-bites-man sense to relate these little episodes out of human nature. New York is full of them. Wasn't Tony, the Battery's famed bootblack, rich when he died? Something like $20,000 in the banks, and in this Tony differed from those who preferred to hide their coin in old newspapers or between mattresses. Tony believed in the banks. Several of them. He had accounts in at least three New York banks. His cash assets were in excess of $20,000.

Yet every day of his life he was on his knees on the hard pavement of the Battery, shining shoes, shining anybody's shoes, for a dime, wiping the bootblack on his hands, then on his thighs, and grinning happily. He got big tips because he had worked up a tipping clientele among cutter operators, maritime authorities, and ship captains. He knew everybody. When he died they laid him out handsomely. There were floral tributes from brokers and shipping masters.

* * *

BUT the strangest story of rags to riches was that poor old Bowery bum who found a stack of important notes in Wall street, received a handsome reward, and three days later became insane. In the interim he had dined lavishly on steaks and wine. Medical men explained his derangement in this wise: unused to so many vitamins, the sudden rush of rich foodstuffs enriched the bloodstream so hurriedly that it affected his brain.

A Farmer's Diary

Looking Backward

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I STOPPED by an abandoned house and barn that stood beside a narrow lane. Each single wagon track had become a ditch near the low bank, which made the drive impassible. I left my car along the improved highway, and walked.

Some pieces of old post fence lay almost buried in the sod. I tore away the sharpened end of a chestnut rail. The mortised post, broken in the center was very solid. I found it was a straight grained locust stick.

The house at one time had a lovely setting in the midst of fruit and forest trees. Two cedar stumps were along the yard, and remnants of other rotting stumps showed where an orchard had stood. The house was gray and unpainted, with wide colonial windows boarded up. It had a large chimney in the center and remnants of scroll work showed along the gables. Along the southern side, I noticed, protruding from the mat of last year's grass, the corners of bricks that had marked a flower bed about three feet wide. Hollyhocks were more than a foot in height; scarlet peony shoots emerged from the soil in three different places. Purple violets, moist and fragrant, grew out from the crevices in the walk.

At one place, where the weather-beaten siding was ripped by a recent storm, the well-built framing of the structure showed — hand-hewn from oak.

The old barn was like an open book. One large door that closed the west side of the sagging floor was hanging only by the corner, held up by a faithful wrought iron post and the female portion of a hinge. Fortunately the warped old hickory rafters supported a metal roof that did not leak.

On the hayless mows, an aged farmer must have left his tools. An old plow was set in the farthest corner. It had the ancient self-sharpening point. A cutter sleigh, with thills tilted back, stood near the center. A binder with a frame nearly all of wood, reinforced with straps of steel, stood on one side. A broad single shovel and two double shovel plows stood with their beams upraised, in a common corner. An ancient fanning mill was near the granary door, its beveled hopper higher than my shoulders. A one horse corn planter with dual wheels behind, lay sideways near the binder. Two long handled wooden rakes with broken teeth hung from a beam.

I stood there among these relics, and completely forgot the rapid pace of modern farming, while I lived happily in the past. The roar of a tractor in an adjoining field brought me back to the present. I walked thoughtfully up the rutty drive to my car, reflecting on the mighty changes in farm methods that this chance visit had disclosed.

'DOCTORS MAYO' ON LIBRARY'S NEW BOOK LIST

The warm human story of three remarkable men of world renown is set down in "The Doctors Mayo,' by H. B. Clapsattle, a new book now available at the Mansfield Public Library.

Clapsattle traces the growth of a small town practice to an institution of world renown and his book is a significant study of a century's advances in surgery and medicines. More than that it is a profile of William Worral Mayo and his famous sons, Will and Charlie.

Wide Margins by George Palmer Putnam is the unconventional memoir of a publisher who didn't believe in the armchair theory of book publishing. Though it is rich in literatary anecdote and personalities of the past two decades—William Beebe, Richard E. Byrd, Roy Chapman Andrews, Rockwell Kent, Amelia Earhart, etc.—it is, above all, the story of a man who made his profession fit his own adventurous vitality.

Although as modern as any gadget from Detroit, THE MAKING OF TOMORROW by Raoul de Roussy de Sales is distinctly in the classic tradition. The result of many years in thought and experience, it is an interpretation of the American way of life and also an analysis of the way of life of the whole Western world, now at war with the totalitarian states.

The Last Time I Saw Paris by Eliot Paul is an intimate human document which brings back to life a group of French men and women who typify in all their nobility and degradation, a civilization the world can ill afford to lose. To the lovable people on the rue de la Huchette where Mr. Paul lived for a number of years, he devotes this book—it being the story of that street.

OTHER NON-FICTION: THE OPERA by Brockway and Weinstock; THIS IS YOUR WAR by Childs; BUSINESS AS USUAL by Stone; GREAT ADVENTURES OF PEDAGOGY by Sonderson; HARPERS ENGLISH GRAMMAR by Opdycke; FRESH WATER FISHING by Shoemaker; TOOLS O FWAR by Newman; HERBS, THEIR CULTURE AND USE by Clarkson; MAGNESIUM AND ITS ALLOYS by Haughton; THE OFICER'S GUIDE.

I REMEMBER CHRISTINE by Oscar Lewis is an ironical tale of a celebrated California family—of its founder, a shrewd trader, empire builder, and sinner; of his very proper son and his iconoclastic daughter—and of the incidents that crowded their lives during almost a century of turbulent and picturesque history. San Francisco from the 1850's to the present provides the background for this unusual story.

FIRE IN SUMMER by Robert Ramsey is a novel with a southern locale, about an angry man, never reconciled to any aspect of his life. He quarrels with his wife and children; he hates his employer, the relief organization which tries to help him, and most of all, Negroes, with an unrelenting fury.

THE SCARLET IMPOSTER by Dennis Wheatley is a "thriller" which centers in the historical episode of the attempt to bomb Hitler in a Munich beer hall, and pursues its intricate way across warring Europe through a maze of plots and counterplots, espionage and counter-espionage, sabotage and counter-sabotage.

OTHER FICTION: HIS OWN PLACE by Freeman; THE D. A. COOKS A GOOSE by Gardner; RHAPSODY IN GREEN by Carfrac.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Readers above the fourth grade will find exciting adventure in two new stories in the Children's department. The first tells of an incident on an island near our own shores and the other describes how the Norwegian gold was saved from the Nazis less than two years ago.

STORM ON THE ISLAND, by Eleanor Frances Lattimore — Rose Ann lived in a snug little house on an island. Her father was a planter and there were only a few neighbors. One day it rained very hard and toward evening a very bad wind storm joined the rain and uprooted the chinaberry tree that had stood in front of the snug little house. After the storm Rose Ann with her father and brother called on the neighbors to bears news of the storm and to help them if they were in trouble.

SNOW TREASURE, by Marie McSwigan—It is a matter of record that in June, 1940 a Norwegian freighter arrived in Baltimore with a load of gold bullion worth $9,000,000. The captain told the story of how a group of children had pulled the gold nuggets on their sleds past the Nazi centries to where it might be loaded on a camouflaged ship during the German occupation of Riswyk. An air of mystery and adventure fills this retelling of that story of Peter and his young friends in the Riswyk school.

Murder On the Avenue

By Carolyn Wells

(Copyright, 1942.)

CHAPTER X

"Don't be silly. A woman couldn't be strong enough and determined enough to put it over. You know the victim must have put up a fight as long as she could, oh well, it isn't a woman's style. They almost invariably give poison."

"Well then, who smothered her?"

"I don't know, Colby. I'm not one of those intellects who find a cigaret stub, and tell the murderer's real name. I just have to grope. But it's dogged as does it, and I'm going to shake the truth out of this bunch of suspects, or —or not."

* * *

Raynor had already realized the difficulties of quizzing a set of chuckle-headed half witted dandies, as he dubbed the smart set. They knew little and what they did know they wouldn't tell. And what they told wasn't always true. A bad lookout.

He recounted these infelicities to Sergeant Colby.

"I reason from facts as I see them," Raynor said. "But I can't get the facts. Here's where I stand. The lady was in the room, and some man came in; and then that man went out and another man came. And then he went out and another man came. And then —just like sheep going over a fence. But—in what order did those men appear? You don't think it possible, that someone came into the room, saw the lady dead, and went out again, and told nobody!"

"That wouldn't be possible for a woman, but quite a likely dodge for a man who feared he might be suspected."

"Possible, but unlikely. It would have to be a man with a very guilty conscience . . . Where does the third door in the coat room go to?"

"One opens into the north hall, one into the south hall, and the other into a bathroom! it's a guest room. The two halls, they're really corridors, curve around to the gallery that looks down on the rotunda."

"I wish I had your photographic vision. Then one could go into the room by the north hall door out by the south hall door, and not be noticed."

"I don't think anybody noticed anybody else much, at the party. They were not playing detectives"

"No. But the men that went through the room made a procession of possible suspects, don't you see?"

"Yes, I see, but I don't know who the men were."

"I do" Raynor looked very serious. "I do, but I don't know in what order they went. There's the trouble. . . . Run along now, boy; I'll do up the Chink and the imperturbable Dickson, and call it a day."

"You like talk to me?" he asked, politely.

"Yes; be seated, please."

The butler sat down, and Raynor studied him for a moment.

A small man, with black hair one bit of which fell in his eyes now and then and he impatiently pushed it back. His eyes were small and black and very bright.

"You like the people you work for?" Raynor asked him.

"Yes. Mr. McCleod fine man, Mis McCleod is flowers to see."

"That is a phrase you picked up?"

"It is line of poetry. Chinese good poets."

"Yes. Now, Foo Chow, what do you know about Mrs. McCleod's sad death?"

"Not any one thing."

"But you have heard a lot. You waited on the guests last night and all day today. You must have heard a great deal."

"Good butler hear no word."

"That's all right ordinarily. But now, as things are, it is your duty to tell anything you overheard that will help us find the criminal."

"Good servant say nothing."

"Very well; never mind the guests. What do the people say in the kitchen?"

"Good butler not go in kitchen."

"Well, I suppose some of the other servants come there once in a while. Who do they say killed Mrs. McCleod?"

"They say they not know."

"But they suspect someone. You do, don't you?"

"Me? Foo Chow suspect no ones."

"Well, suppose someone said to you, 'I know who killed the lady.' What would you say? Wouldn't you say, 'Who?'"

"No, I not say that."

"What would you say?"

"I say, 'Go hell, please,' and no more."

"You wouldn't listen to him?"

"Most very surely not!"

"But he might tell you the truth, and then you could tell me."

"That is not the chance."

"What chance?"

"It is not a chance to be the truth, what he tells me."

"No, probably not. But Dickson, now, Dickson might know"

"Might he?"

"You bonehead! You know he might. Has he told you nothing?"

"Nothing. I would not allow."

"Look here, my man, you are laying up trouble for yourself. Don't you know that by holding back like this you may be arrested and made to talk?"

"When one knows nothing, all talk empty sound."

"You exasperate me!"

"I tell you maybe, who killed lovely lady?"

"Yes, you might tell me that" Raynor's hopes were dashed.

"Well, then I tell you it was the deep, the wise Linda."

"Linda? Kill her mistress! No, no, Foo Chow."

"But it has to be Linda. She, you see, would marry with Dickson. They are betrothed. But they are of an ambition. They want to live rich. Now, with Mrs. McCleod dead, Linda will get enormous sum of money, and she and her Dickson will live happy ever after."

"After she has committed murder? Oh, no, Chow, she couldn't do that!"

"Murderer have no heart, no remorse."

"Oh, nonsense! It wasn't Linda".

"But Dickson, he think it Linda."

"No; he doesn't; he can't."

"You ask him, Mr. Polisman! You ask him! He will not say 'Yes, my Linda, she is murderer!' But you will know. His eye will droop, his lip will shudder, he will melt away. You will know, then."

"Go away, Foo Chow. You've said enough. Don't you dare say this to anyone else! Understand?"

"You exasperate me, sir. Yes, I understand. I will obey."

* * *

Raynor waved his hand. He thought over what he had heard and sent for Dickson.

"You busy, Dickson?" he asked when the valet came in.

"I am at your service, Captain Raynor."

"Very well. Sit there, and tell me anything you may know about this tragedy that has come to Mr. McCleod."

"I don't know anything, sir, that you don't know yourself."

"Well, you ought to. You were here in the house when it happened. I didn't arrive until some time after that. Then we'll put it this way: Have you any idea who killed the lady?"

"I wouldn't want to put a mere idea into words, sir. I might be doing someone a deep injustice."

"And you might be doing someone else a deep injustice by not telling what you know."

"It's very hard, sir."

"What's very hard?"

"To know what to do."

"Let me help you. Do you, perhaps, suspect somebody, and you hate to say so, because you may be wrong?"

"Yes, Captain Raynor, that's it exactly."

"You are afraid of incriminating somebody you care for?"

"Not care for in the sense of affection, but somebody I respect."

* * *

This was an odd way to speak of the woman he was engaged to, and Raynor wondered whether Foo Chow was off his head after all.

"You mean one of the gentlemen who was at the party?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, Dickson, having said as much as you have, you will have to tell me the man's name. But it is not probable he will ever know that you spoke of him to me, and after all, there may be nothing against him."

"Very well, sir. Then I will tell you it was Mr. Ogden Murray.."

"And what makes you think there is any reason to suspect him of wrong-doing?"

"He was trying to get money from Mrs. McCleod, sir, under false pretenses."

"Swindling her?"

"That's a strong word. But he was trying to persuade her to buy some shares in an oil well, which I know to be a worthless proposition."

"Are you a speculator yourself, Dickson?"

"No, sir. But this is a well-known fraud—I mean, well-known among some people I know, who were fooled by it."

"Something like the Spanish Prisoner racket?"

"Not as old and well-known as that, but it is becoming so. It's an old oil well, in Texas, and it's reported to be gushing again, and there's a lot of people who believe in it, and they are buying shares like crazy!"

"And Mrs. McCleod was interested?"

"Yes, sir. Mr. Murray told her about it, and she had promised to buy a lot of shares."

"How do you know all this?"

"Because Linda is the lady's maid, and I am engaged to Linda. But I hope, sir, Linda's name needn't be brought into it."

"No, Dickson, there's no reason why it should. This is an important matter you're telling me about."

CUTICURA OINTMENT

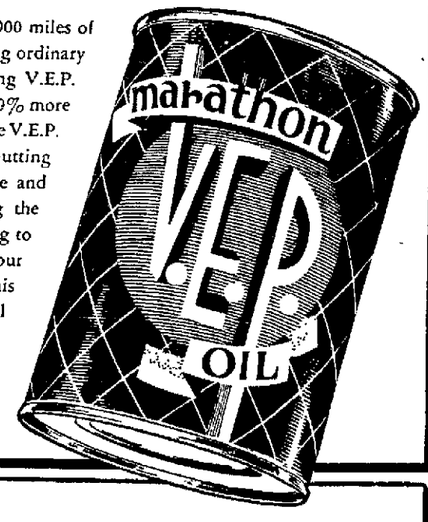
SURE, I'M PATTING MYSELF ON THE BACK . . .
I'M ADDING 50% TO THE LIFE OF MY MOTOR* with new V.E.P.

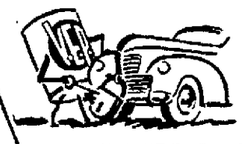
*Scientific tests, plus over 5 million miles of road travel, prove that by using V.E.P. your motor will actually last half again as long as it would using ordinary oil.

ENTIRELY NEW! ENTIRELY DIFFERENT!
V.E.P. is an alloyed oil

LOOK AT IT THIS WAY. For every 1,000 miles of service you have left in your motor, using ordinary oil . . . you get an extra 500 miles using V.E.P. That's right, 50% longer motor life . . . 50% more miles between costly overhauls. And while V.E.P. is helping conserve your motor, it's putting real savings in your pocket on gasoline and oil. Is that a good reason for joining the thousands of motorists who are switching to V.E.P.? You bet it is. Stop 'round at your Marathon dealer's. Get the facts about this entirely new, entirely different motor oil . . . change to V.E.P. Alloyed-Oil today.

35¢ PER QUART AT YOUR MARATHON DEALER'S





SAVES OIL. By freeing valves, rings, unplugging the slots in your oil rings, V.E.P. prevents burning of excessive oil in combustion chamber . . . conserves it, instead.

SAVES GASOLINE. V.E.P.'s cleaning action frees your valves and piston rings . . . gives a tighter seal . . . saves lost compression . . . turns gasoline into power instead of waste. A clean motor is a more efficient motor . . . a more economical motor.

Co-eds Are Still Scared of Mice, Survey Reveals

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—(INS)—The modern sophisticated co-ed, despite years of claiming equal opportunities with men and invading traditionally masculine jobs still fears mice, rats, worms and lizards.

At least that's the concensus of a study recently completed by Dr. Clifford R. Adams, assistant professor of psychology at Pennsylvania State college.

Using a personality test devised by him and a fellow professor, Dr. Adams found that women still have many more fears than men, even though they compete with men in almost every field.

In his study, Dr. Adams queried 320 students from five different universities. The co-eds revealed they also feared burglars, prowlers, heavy thunder and lightning and walking alone at night.

The girls were also more superstitious, expressing fear of having a black cat cross their path, and walking past graveyards at night.

Normally, Italy is one of principal wheat-growing nations, the third largest producer in Europe, with a crop about one-third that of U. S.

THE WAR TODAY

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
(Wide World War Analyst)

Herr Hitler's spring "offensive" is strongly reminiscent of the old Chinese proverb that he who rides a tiger finds it difficult to dismount.

Der fuehrer is compelled to get ahead with his increasingly difficult business of trying to break through into the Caucasus, but thus far he is continuing to encounter what to him is the phenomenon of an enemy which, taking the picture as a whole, retains the initiative.

While his operation on the Kerch peninsula has met with considerable success, yet in the far more important Kharkov sector to the north, where he really ought to be attacking with his 2:000,000 men, he himself is being flung back by a fierce Red drive.

The Nazi chief is finding the Russian tiger plenty tough to ride. However, Hitler is tough himself, and is going to cause a lot of trouble. His offensive against the Kerch peninsula is forcing the Reds back slowly toward the Kerch strait.

This Nazi attack was necessary for two reasons:

1. Before the fuehrer could undertake his major offensive against the vital sector between Kharkov and the Sea of Azov, the logical route to the Caucasus, he had to smash the strong Red forces in the Crimea, since these would be a perpetual threat against his right flank.

2. If the Nazi chief could clear the Reds off the peninsula, and get across the Strait of Kerch, and if he also could annihilate Russian opposition on the other side of the strait, then he would have opened up a short-cut into the Caucasus. However, putting an army across Kerch strait in the face of heavy enemy opposition is a gigantic task. Hurdling these big ditches is one of the most difficult of military operations. Anyway, we don't need to cross this strait until we come to it.

The Muscovite answer to Hitler's Crimean drive is a fine piece of strategy. The Reds in their attack along a 35-mile front in the Kharkov sector are (1) compelling Hitler not only to hold troops and equipment there, thus preventing him from using them in developing his Crimean show but are forcing him to rush up reinforcements, and (2) are threatening his key position and communications which he needs for any attack against the Caucasus gateway lying between Kharkov and Rostov.

Of course, should the Bolshevist offensive achieve a deep penetration of the Nazi line about Kharkov it would develop in due course into a turning movement which would threaten the German right flank on the Sea of Azov. However, such an advance would be so great that we are not justified in going far with speculation about it until the Russian offensive has proceeded further.

London reports that Hitler is using 2,000 warplanes in his drive along the Kerch peninsula and that the battle is likely to hinge on air power. That probably is an accurate appraisal, since control of the air will be essential if the Germans succeed in reaching the strait and try to cross it. By the same token, if the Reds have adequate air strength on the strait, they can prevent a crossing.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Manhattan Nights.

WHILE the more astral columnists are occupied with ouija-boarding the future of civilization in all continents and hemispheres, I suppose a minor historian of the Great Dim Way called Broadway may sit at much the same kind of a typewriter and wonder, not the big wonder about the world after this struggle, but the small wonder about what it will be like after war ends. For this street and this town will show the pattern of the new era as soon as any street or any town, perhaps sooner; it is a big canvas, and a light shines on it always, very bright.

Kilgallen

Yes, very often these evenings in the crowded cafes, in the traffic-stalled taxis, in the Springsoft streets, I find myself wondering what it will be like afterwards—the street, the town, and the era.

* * *

Perhaps you remember what the last After-the-War time was like. I can recall quite a lot about it: I thought of it just the other evening watching short, paunchy, glossy Emil Coleman leading his band on the podium of La Martinique. The sight of him always greases a slide in my memory; I shoot back through time to the years when stockings were pink and skirts were suddenly short and Johnny 2x4s flourished behind peep doors all over town and the biggest word in the dictionary was Prosperity.

You know the era: After Alexander's Rag Time Band, but before Eddy Duchin. After the Castles had hit their peak, but before anybody had ever heard of Ginger Rogers. "Should girls park their corsets?" was the big question of the day; references to hip flasks reverberated from every pulpit in the country; girls sat in barbers' chairs for the first time in history and had their necks clipped, like boys.

But Emil Coleman, leading his 1942 band in a rumba hot off the boat from Cuba, couldn't possibly know that he reminded me of all that.

* * *

Now those seem wasteful, aimless, unintelligent, scandalous, silly times, wickedly childish for adults to indulge in—but wasn't it only a few years ago that they seemed like "the good old days" and a whole generation of Americans referred to them as such? We see that era through different lenses now that we are shocked into prudence and sobriety, but wasn't there a moment when it seemed like fun?

Do you remember even better than I, Mr. Coleman, evenings when patrons casually slipped hundred dollar bills into the magnetic palms of maestros who remembered a pet tune? When a reservation at a ringside table automatically put you under obligation to buy a bottle of champagne? When couverts were born, and it cost you $3 on week nights, $6 on Saturdays, just to take a seat and spread a napkin in your lap? When chorus girls wore six-foot head-dresses on the stage, and six or seven orchids when they went out at night? When more people read the stock market pages than the comic strips, and the front pages got excited about rum-runners who warred with the Coast Guard?

They didn't dream what was coming, did they?

Maybe that's why it was such fun.

Will Put Air Travel on Wartime Basis

ARMY TO RUN 80 AIRLINERS, CONTROL 300

70 Giant Transports Will Be Converted to Cargo Planes Under FDR Instructions.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Domestic airline travel will be placed on a full wartime basis in the near future with the army operating or controlling the nation's entire fleet of more than 300 transport planes.

The war department, acting on instructions of President Roosevelt, announced last night the army would take over operation of 80 or more of the airliners, while approximately 70 others will be converted into cargo carriers, to be operated by airline personnel for the military.

The remaining planes; about half of those now in service, will continue commercial schedules for the time being "but will be considered always available for emergency military missions."

"Air travel vital to the country's needs will continue, subject to a strict system of priorities," the announcement said. "All persons who can travel by train are to do so, except in real emergencies."

While airmail will continue to be carried over remaining routes, it was added that "it may become necessary to curtail this service more at a later date." Priorities for passenger travel, in effect for months, will be made stricter. Even members of the armed forces or persons engaged in war work will not be guaranteed seats.

"The entire plan," said the department, "follows the intent of the law setting up the air lines as an element of national defense and has been drawn up for the purpose of further utilizing in the war effort the equipment of the air lines and the valuable experience of their trained personnel.

"The war department is confident of the complete cooperation of both the carrier companies and the general public in putting it into operation promptly and effectively."

HIT PLAN TO GIVE MILLER NO OPPOSITION

Democratic Leaders Protest; Durbin Says Clevelander Should Fight Like Rest.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — A northwestern Ohio Democratic leader and a candidate for governor today added their voices to steadily mounting protests against a plan of some of the party's leaders to run Ray T. Miller of Cleveland as an unopposed candidate for the governorship nomination.

Francis W. Durbin of Lima, chairman of the Allen county Democratic committee, asserted that "for any organization or group to endorse any person for nomination is defeating the principles of the party primary for which we fought for many years."

John McSweeney of Wooster, who is already campaigning for the nomination, declared that he is still in the race despite a decision, reached at a meeting here this week, to ask other candidates to withdraw in favor of Miller in the interest of "party harmony."

State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson and State Industrial Commissioner Clarence H. Knisley, other major candidates for the party's nomination, said earlier that they would not quit the race.

"Mr. Ferguson, Mr. Knisley and Mr. McSweeney are tried and true Democrats. They have rendered excellent service to the people of Ohio and to the Democratic party and any one of them will make a good governor. Mr. Miller is a good friend, a great Democratic leader from a great Democratic county. We appreciate his position in the party and he would make a good governor, but he should get into the fight as the others have done if he desires that office.

"Mr. Miller or any other Democrat has the right to run if he chooses, but any state endorsement or wholesale endorsements for any candidate is going to defeat the nominee whoever he might be at the November election."

McSweeney said that he will attend another meeting of party leaders at Columbus next week only if all other candidates for the nomination are present and are permitted "to lay their cards on the table." He said he had told those backing Miller that he would not withdraw.

Durbin recalled that Vic Donahey was opposed by "organization" leaders when he ran for governor but was nominated each time, with support of only a few county chairmen.

FARMERS HIT CUT-RATE PRICE

Leaders Flock to Washington to Protest Selling Stored Grain For Feed.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Grain belt farm group leaders were reported to be rushing to Washington to protest against a pending war measure to release millions of bushels of stored grain for livestock feeding at cut-rate prices.

An influential member of the senate farm bloc said a number of farm organization leaders expected to reach here Saturday for a conference with senators in charge of the annual farm appropriations bill, in which the proposal is contained.

The grain belt spokesmen were said to be protesting an agriculture department - farm bloc compromise for below-parity sale of government grain surpluses for livestock feeding only. The administration backs the compromise as a means of meeting the United Nations' needs for more beef, pork and mutton.

The house had written into the farm bill a provision prohibiting any sales of government farm stocks at less than a full parity price.

The senate appropriations committee then voted to allow below parity sales of 125,000,000 bushels of wheat and unlimited amounts of other grains for feeding purposes.

The agriculture department has warned that grain production must be curtailed because of crowded storage facilities, a limited foreign market, and lack of shipping space. It seeks to turn some grain acreage to meat production.

Senator McNary (R.-Ore.) minority leader and an important member of the bi-partisan farm bloc as a wheat area senator, quietly got the senate to delay any action on the surplus grain provision until Monday after debate on the farm bill opened yesterday.

ENDORSE FINGERPRINTING OF ALL CHILDREN IN OHIO SCHOOLS

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Fingerprinting of a million Ohio school pupils to aid in identification in event of aerial bombing or separation from parents during evacuations of cities was endorsed tentatively today by state defense and education officials.

Col. Lynn Black, state highway patrol superintendent, urged immediate fingerprinting of pupils at a meeting here this week of leaders mapping evacuation plans for cities regarded as potential bombing targets.

Black said fingerprinting would go far in preventing the confusion experienced in England during Nazi "blitz" bombing when many children were unable to identify themselves after their parents were killed or became separated from them.

Kenneth Ray, state education director, expresesd belief that pupil fingerprinting would be a valuable wartime practice and said his department would cooperate fully in such a program.

Courtney Burton, executive director of the state defense council, said he saw no objection to the proposal but reserved complete endorsement pending conferences with other officials.

Black proposed that the state maintain a complete file of pupil fingerprints and send copies to the department of justice in Washington for its civilian file.

He said the entire personnel of nearly 300 in the highway patrol was qualified to take standard fingerprints and that they would handle the task in all rural schools. Local enforcement officers could take prints in city schools.

Black urged that fingerprinting get under way immediately to complete it before summer vacations.

The classification "missing," the Navy said, covers "those who cannot be accounted for, some of whom may be prisoners, some of whom may have been rescued at sea and landed at isolated spots and have had no opportunity to communicate with U. S. authorities.

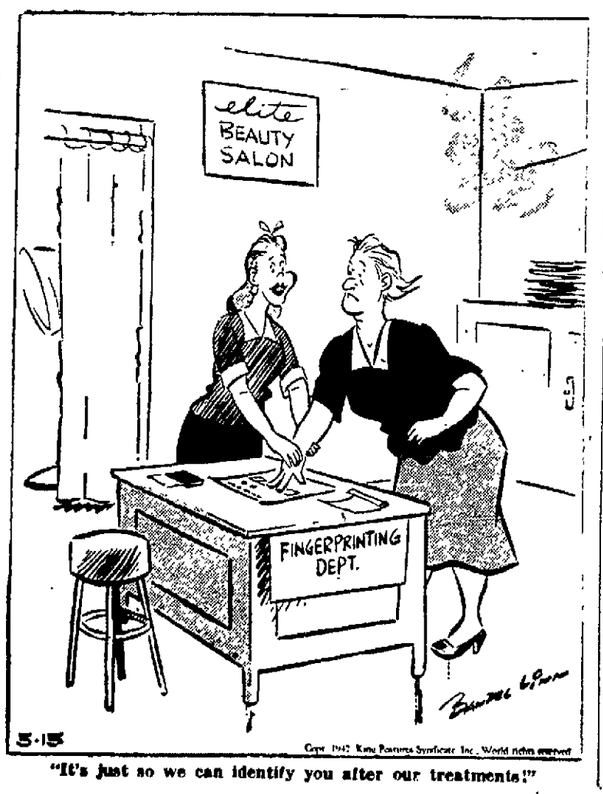
Laff-a-Day



"It's just so we can identify you after our treatments!"

The art exhibit at St. Peter's school yesterday brought a sophomore pupil the first financial gain from his talent. Visited by a Fort Wayne stained-glass artist stopping in the city, the exhibit revealed the drawing of a religious symbol sought by the artist for a window he is repairing. He consulted the art teacher, Sister Floriana, as to the name of the pupil and as a result William Welch, sophomore, received his first profit from his artistic talent.

More than 200 Mansfield school pupils entered safety posters in the annual contest of the Mansfield Police Recreation club yesterday but one of the posters winning honorable mention had two pupils working on it. When Nancy Jane Anderson learned she was coming down with the mumps, she turned over her drawing for a safety poster to Bob Bishop, who finished the poster for her. Both Nancy Jane and Bob won honorable mention for their poster yesterday.

Walking under a ladder, traditionally an omen of bad luck, proved exactly that for Mrs. John Fisch, 29 Raleigh avenue, who filed a $5,000 damage suit today in common pleas court for injuries she received when a ladder fell on her head as she walked along North Main street. Her damage suit is against Jacob Kopcial, the window cleaner who allegedly leaned the ladder in front of a building, and the W. T. Grant company, against whose store the ladder was placed. Mrs. Fisch contends that the ladder was at too great an angle and Kopcial did not take proper precautions in placing it against the store.

Legislators Seem To Want Gasoline Ration Priveleges

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Conceding that other senators were "almost unanimously" opposed to his plan, Senator Downey (D.-Calif.) said today he had given up hope of putting his colleagues on record as waiving any special privileges under the gasoline rationing system.

Majority leader Barkley announced, however, that Downey's resolution to that effect would be voted on today, before resumption of debate on the agriculture appropriation bill.

Target of a two-hour tirade by fellow senators who accused him of attempting to make "political capital" of a "teapot explosion," Downey said "I don't plan to do anything further. I think that almost unanimously the senate is against it."

As registrations closed yesterday, a spokesman said that of the 435 house members and 96 senators, slightly more than 400 altogether had obtained ration cards. A few, he said, had returned to exchange X cards for A or B coupons. Some legislators do not keep cars in Washington.

Having a real victim on their hands nonplused them. Out of the confusion, however, came a brilliant idea.

They called a doctor.

IN KEEPING with the Mother's day theme a program was presented yesterday afternoon at the Central Methodist church for members of the Women's Society of Christian Service. Seventy were in attendance for the luncheon served at noon in charge of Mrs. A. J. Barker and her committee. Tables were attractive with mixed bouquets of spring flowers and throughout the room were large baskets of flowers, arranged by Mrs. L. E. Strain.

The program was opened by the group singing of "America, the Beautiful." Mrs. E. C. Jenkins arranged the entertainment which consisted of current events from "The Methodist Woman," given by Mrs Arthur T. Owen; devotions by Mrs. E. A. Conant, whose topic was "Month of May-Christian Family Month"; paper on "The World Problem In the Local Community" by Mrs. H. J. Dotson; vocal solo, "Serenade to a Service Star," by Mrs. Fred Troll, accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Glendinning.

The theme, "Mother," was the second part of the program with Mrs. J. R Turner giving a poem which she had written for the occasion as a tribute to the mothers of the boys in service from the Central Methodist church. The names of these boys were then read by Mrs Jenkins and a corsage presented to each of their mothers in attendance. Mrs. William Frey responded with a few words, representing the mothers.

Frocks In Pan-American Hues

By SUSAN BARDEN
(International Illustrated News Writer.)

The beauty of Pan-American flowers has inspired a set of new colors this season that are appropraitely called "Amigo Mio." These entrancing shades are eloquent of the beauty and charm of our allies to the South And they give a new and lovelier look to the sports clothes of the summer of 1942.

The latest things in clacks, suits, blouses and sports dresses will be seen in these shades which were selected from the products of the Pan-American countries They reflect in vivid, authentic tones the natural wealth of this continent and South America, whose welfare and interest are so closely allied today.

Wearing fashions in the Amigo Mio colors give you that good neighbor feeling, and it is wonderful to know that you'll not only look charming but be patriotic at the same time.

The three costumes shown in the above photographs are all made in shades taken from famous flowers of different friendly countries of the Western Hemisphere.

Costa Rican Posy Is Rose Shade.

The tailored culottes are in a tone inspired by the columnea flower of Costa Rica which is a lovely rose shade. The material is a labtex spun rayon and acetate alpaca type cloth The culottes are topped with a tailored blouse of fine rayon broadcloth. It is fashioned with short sleeves, one small flap pocket, and is in aqua which goes beautifully with the culottes This is an ideal costume for bicycling, as well as many other active sports.

The Colombian sobralia, a tropical orchid that is dusty pink, is the color used in the two-piece summer suit. The jacket is fairly long with a four-button front closing, four patch pockets and short sleeves. The skirt has two front pleats. This ensemble can be worn either with or without a blouse, and with either a contrasting coat or skirt to make several different outfits.

The smartly tailored little coat dress is in a shade that was adapted from the Chilean flower, chilestar, which is a powder blue, most becoming to a sun tan. It has a front button closing, short sleeves and one patch pocket. The belt at the natural waistline is of darker blue leather. The material is a new fabric which combines acetate and spun rayon shantung, very cool and serviceable.

PRIORITIES IN PIANOS - - -

This much-used word, according to Webster, means "antecedence or superiority. In Mansfield PRIORITY in PIANOS is synonymous with JONES—forty years and more of honorable dealing with pianos have made for JONES an enviable reputation.

The sale of a piano is a sale of confidence at JONES. The difference between an artistic instrument of true value and one which is purchased to "BORAX SELL" is a lifetime of satisfaction against waiting for the opportunity to trade off the rattlebox.

Claims made by JONES are backed by a faithful guarantee of houses like STEINWAY and BALDWIN and LESTER instead to worthless and brazen certificates of so much paper.

AT JONES—real instruments are actually sold for less than you will be asked by some who are inviting your confidence on a "catch." Before you make the important purchase of a piano why don't you consult your teacher of piano, or some reputable authority before you leap into a contract which will bring regret. At JONES you buy from a home-owned firm who finance their own business and you can buy security and satisfaction.

ALL WE ASK IS COMPARE—THEN DECIDE

W. E. JONES PIANO HOUSE
146 Park Ave. West

JONES' stocks of fine pianos are large, and our government wants you to enjoy more music now than ever before. Our government wants no hysteria on this buying movement, and they do not relish sales promotion at the expense of an honest war effort.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

The constriction of my throat muscles tightened at Jack's speech, and for a moment I could not answer. Then the clutch at my throat loosened and I spoke swiftly, feeling a desperate need to do so.

"What do you mean about not having the chance to talk to me again?" I asked.

"Exactly what I say," he returned inexorably. "Our ways part when we reach New York—or before, perhaps."

"You can't do this to us, Jack," I gasped. "Katharine, my father and I, all loyal to you, are ready to guard you with our lives."

Jack a Hunted Man.

"That's just it," he returned. "I am a hunted and marked man. Any association with me means grave danger for anyone connected with me. I thought nobody knew of my old association with Professor Diswell, and that I would be safe with him, if anywhere. And now you see what I have brought to him! Will you—"

He looked at me uncertainly, and I finished his question.

"Look after him? You know I will. But before you talk any more about our ways parting, will you please consider Marion?

"I can understand your reluctance to go to the hotel, and I agree it would be very unwise for you to show yourself in so public a place, even in your very effective disguise. But," I went on, "we are not going first to the hotel."

"Where then?" His question was clipped and curt, with no indication of any lessening of his determination.

"My father has a hideaway in Greenwich Village," I told him, "an ingenious, seemingly innocuous apartment building which he owns and controls.

"There are secret rooms in the place where you could remain indefinitely with safety. But as to that, I will not presume to advise you. I only beg of you to go there long enough to reveal yourself to my father, give him what aid you can about Marion and accept any help he can give you."

His lips set in a stubborn line, and he was silent for so long that I despairingly decided he was going to reject my plea. Then suddenly those stubborn lips quirked into a smile.

"You always were a good special pleader, Margaret," he said, "and I'll yield this far. I'll go down to your father's hideaway and see him, but I cannot promise to stay there.

"Tell me now what you think is behind this mystery of the letters which have disappeared? Of course one or two of them may have been lost, but we have been getting our business mail down there, and the firm has been receiving our mail. So if you have any ideas I want to hear them."

One impulse urged me to trust him and do as he asked. Another, with the thought of Ruth Hayes behind it, together with a lingering doubt of him, made me steel myself against him

"You are the one who should have ideas about this, Jack," I said. "If you have no suspicion of what is behind all this, I can tell you nothing."

"The Authority on Authorities"

REVERSING THE DUMMY

ONE OF THE greatest advantages in having a trump suit with four cards in your own hand opposite four in the dummy is that you can reverse the usual procedure if you wish and treat the dummy's holding as the main trump setup while using the trumps in your own hand for ruffing. The question of whether to do this or not depends upon various factors, especially that of which is the stronger holding. Ordinarily it is best to use that as the main suit and do your ruffing with the weaker one. As a rule, if you do it the other way, and ruff with the higher trumps, you may set up one or more trump tricks for the defenders.

No better example than this could be asked for what veteran players call "reversing the dummy." Walter L. Pate, New York attorney, who has been a world figure in tennis circles for years, and also a great bridge enthusiast, was the declarer, and showed from the start that he knew what he was about.

As soon as the diamond A was led, Mr. Pate began to do his card reading. He won the second diamond with the K and proceeded with his plan to set up the dummy. After laying down the spade A and K, he abandoned trumps because he wanted to ruff diamonds twice in his own hand, having read South for only two diamonds and North for five as well as for three trumps. Observing these tactics, he ruffed out the diamond 5 and 10, North having to follow suit. He later was able to drop the spade J with the Q, so that he lost only one trick in clubs and one in hearts in addition to the first one taken by the diamond A.

Just try to figure out what would have occurred if he had treated his own trumps as the main holding and endeavored to ruff with those in the dummy. He would have set up the spade J for the trick which beat him.

After bidding of 1-Diamond by West and 6 No-Trumps by East, doubled by South, who then led the heart Q, how should East play for his contract?

Pointing for the district high school track meet tomorrow at Fremont, Coach Harry Mehock of Mansfield high school's undefeated Tygers has been checking up on comparative marks posted by district teams this spring, and trying to find out just why the Tygers have been rated as favorites.

The Tygers have come far and fast since their opening tie with Newark, a tie that was not discovered until the Wildcats had returned home. Both Mansfield and Newark teams left the field believing the Tygers had won, but Mehock discovered the error and called Newark immediately to inform the 'Cats of their good fortune.

* * *

Since then the Tygers have won in decisive fashion from Columbus East, Columbus North, Akron Garfield, Sandusky, Bucyrus and Ashland.

And this week Columbus North defeated Newark. Which may prove something or other. But anything can happen in a track meet, and comparative marks are good only for filling the dope bucket.

* * *

And for tomorrow, I only hope Those other guys don't spill the dope.

* * *

And speaking of dope, here's a little yarn that's as true as I tell it.

We were riding home from Wednesday night's track meet with Ashland, the Mehocks and I, and Harry was discussing some information he was going to bring me on the morrow, and he says to Mrs. M.:

"I will take Rex the dope."

* * *

Whereupon the Mehocks' tiny daughter Dixie queries:

"Who are you calling a dope?"

She had dropped a comma in the most appropriate spot, like this:

"I will take Rex, the dope."

* * *

Out of the mouths of babes etc.— She couldn't know how right she was.

* * *

But let's get back to the point of this column—the comparative marks. Opposition marks may not be entirely accurate, but they were gleaned from the best records available for Mehock. They go like this:

100 yard dash—Jones, Mansfield, Anthony, Sandusky, Waldock, Sandusky, 10.3.

220 yard dash—Jones, Anthony, 23.

Mile run—Pore, Mansfield, 4:44, Molnar, Port Clinton, 4:49.5.

440 yard run—Woodberry, Mansfield, 53.1, Brooksicker, Fremont, 53.9.

880 yard run—Smith, Mansfield, 2:08.6, Christman, Bucyrus, 2:09.

High hurdles—Lewis, Mansfield, 15.8, Robertson, Fremont, 16.4.

Low hurdles—Lewis, Mansfield, 27.4, Demmel, Fremont, 27.8.

880 relay—Sandusky, 1:33.8, Mansfield, 1:34.2.

Mile relay—Mansfield, 3:43, Fremont, 3:50, Bucyrus, 3:50.

Shot put—Jones, Mansfield, 46 feet, 9 inches, Bloom, Port Clinton, 42 feet, 5½ inches.

Discus—Dietzel, Mansfield, 123 feet, Bloom, Port Clinton, 122 feet.

Broad jump—Robertson, Fremont, 20 ft. 11 in., Jones, Mansfield, 20 ft. 8 in.

High jump—Amman, Port Clinton, 5 ft. 9 in., Christman, Bucyrus, 5-9, Packer, Mansfield, 5-8.

Pole vault—Welty, Bucyrus, Johnson, Sandusky, 11 ft. Robertson, Mansfield, 10-9.

Lefties Fail to Stop Bums

Last Five Southpaws Drubbed By Dodgers.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THE Brooklyn Dodgers have most of their power concentrated in left-handed batters — Dolph Camilli, Pete Reiser, Dixie Walker, and Arky Vaughan —and some of their rivals figured the National league champions could be stopped this season by southpaw pitching.

* * *

This is just one more theory that has been shattered by the flatbush follies, who have succeeded in beating the last five left-handers sent against them and now have a record for the season of eight victories and five defeats by postsiders.

* * *

Yesterday they routed Lefty Aldon Wilkie with five runs in three innings and battled on to a 7-4 triumph over the second-place Pittsburgh Pirates.

By capturing the first session of their three-game series, the Dodgers increased their margin to 3 games and destroyed any hopes the Buccaneers may have had of grabbing the National league lead in Brooklyn.

The New York Giants gave the Cincinnati Reds a taste of their own medicine by scoring 10 runs in the eighth inning to win 12-6 and erase the sting of the 12-run inning which the Reds staged against New York May 4.

In the only other National league game Big Bill Lee of the Chicago Cubs added more proof to the supposition that he is making a big comeback by pitching a seven-hit 5-3 victory over the Phils. It was Lee's fifth triumph. The Bruins themselves made only eight hits off Rube Melton and Bill Naylor.

Action in the American league was confined to two games.

The Chicago White Sox halted the five-game winning streak of the Philadelphia Athletics 9-4. The A's made four errors and were held to seven hits by Bill Dietrich while Myril Hoag drove in four runs with three singles.

John Niggeling pitched six-hit ball and Roy Cullenbine and Chet Laabs hit home runs as the St. Louis Browns beat the Boston Red Sox 6-3.

Need Umpires For Softball

Leagues Go Into Action For Season Next Week.

The Mansfield Softball commission is searching around for umpires for this coming season, according to Don Cram, secretary.

Due to defense work and other causes four or five men are needed to work the games for this coming season. All of those interested in umpiring during the coming season are requested to get in touch with Cram, at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday morning.

The umpires are paid for their services so there is no plea for volunteer workers. It is essential that all those interested contact the Y. M. C. A. at once so that schedules can be arranged for the opening of the season Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of next week.

The softball schedules will be published in the Sunday News-Journal and players can have copies by calling at the Y. M. C. A. office.

Iowa and Ohio Play Two Games

CHICAGO —(AP)— Iowa, which has cornered most of the honors in Big Ten baseball statistics, can top off one of its greatest seasons today and tomorrow against Ohio State.

The two games at Iowa City will end the Hawkeye's season and the outcome probably will eliminate one team from the four-way race for the conference championship.

Michigan and Ohio State are tied for the leadership with five wins and one loss apiece. Iowa is third with eight victories in 10 games and Wisconsin fourth with a 3-1 score.

Other two-game series sent Wisconsin to Chicago, Michigan to Illinois, Purdue to Northwestern and Indiana to Minnesota.

Veteran Clicks For St. Paul

(By Associated Press)

Early in the season St. Paul went in search of a first baseman, picking up Phil Weintraub, a big fellow with a lot of reach who had served some time in the major leagues and had played at the initial corner for Minneapolis.

Weintraub looked like the answer to a desperate manager's prayer last night.

He got three doubles, the third coming in the ninth inning with two out to drive in the tying and winning runs, as the Saints collected a cherished 6-5 victory over Minneapolis in the only game played in the Association yesterday.

Toledo at Columbus, Louisville at Indianapolis and Milwaukee at Kansas City were postponed.

GAMES POSTPONED

CANTON—(AP)—All Mid-Atlantic league games were postponed yesterday because of the weather.

Rule Defends Dash Crowns

Lexington Boy Bids For Conference Title.

OBERLIN —(AP)— Dave Hildner's attempt to take his third straight pole vault title and Dick Rule's bid for a repeat against strong competition in the dashes headline the Ohio conference track meet getting under way late today.

* * *

While 174 entrants from 15 schools headed into the preliminaries of the conference's 40th annual cinder session, golfers were competing for the loop crown, and tomororw the conference tennis title will be up for decision.

* * *

Hildner, co-captain of the Oberlin squad, has been vaulting above 12 feet in this year's meets. His principal competition is expected to come from Disantis of Muskingum, Yoples of Bowling Green, and Muxworth of Wooster.

Should he make good on his attempted "triple," he would be the second athlete in conference history to acquire that distinction. Oberlin's Bob Eshelman took three straight championships in both the dashes in 1936-7-8.

* * *

Rule, an Otterbein contestant from Lexington, O., in the 100 and 220-yard dashes, is the only other track entry who is defending an individual title this year.

* * *

Denison grabbed the team tile last year, but the favored contenders this year are Bowling Green, Case and Oberlin. Besides those mentioned, the schools which have entered contestants are Capital, Kent, Kenyon, Mt. Union, Ohio Northern, Toledo and Wittenberg.

Toledo is defending its golf title today, and Toledoan Bryan Deer is out to repeat in the individual championship. The entries included 36 players from seven schools, including Denison, Wooster, Oberlin, Kent, Mt. Union and Findlay.

Tomorrow in the conference's 34th annual tennis meet Kenyon, last year's winner, Denison and Oberlin are expected to be the strongest contenders.

Bucks Favored For Track Crown

EVANSTON, Ill. —(AP)— Basing team strength solely on best recorded performances of the season, Ohio State has a chance of claiming 58 points tomorrow to win the Big Ten track and field championship.

On the same basis, Michigan would get 37½, Illinois 27, Indiana 23½, and Minnesota 21.

* * *

If the Buckeyes continue in the same stride which carried them to the indoor title and to seven of a possible 14 top performances of the season, they should waltz to their first Big Ten outdoor championship.

* * *

Their share of best marks for the season include :09.5 in the 100-yard dash and :21.0 in the 220 by Ralph Hammond; :14.5 in the high hurdles and :23.2 in the lows by Bob Wright; :48.0 quarter mile by Russ Owen; 6 foot 4½ inch high jump by George Hoeflinger, and 3:15.3 for the mile relay.

Only Two Seniors Make Buck Grid Team

Brown Banks On One of Lightest Ohio State Clubs In History

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Two seniors, five juniors and four sophomores—all light, but fast and full of fight—will make up Ohio State university's starting football team next fall.

Paul E. Brown, chief of the depleted Buckeye coaching staff, said so today, as he split his squad into "Reds" and "Whites" for tomorrow's regulation game winding up the spring training chores.

But there are, said Brown, some "ifs"—"if I don't change my mind, if the draft doesn't get some of the boys, if they all remain eligible and stay in school, and if some second or third stringer doesn't beat out one of the boys in the fall."

On the "Red" team, which Brown said would be his starting force in the September inaugural, are: seniors—Leslie Horvath of Parma at right half and Bill Vickroy of Toledo at center; juniors—Capt. George Lynn of Niles at quarterback, Paul Sarringhaus of Hamilton at left half, Charles Csuri of Cleveland at right tackle, and Hal Dean of Wooster and Lynn Houston of Massillon at the guards; sophomores—Gene Fekete of Findlay at fullback, Horace Gillom of Massillon and Dante Lavelli of Hudson at the ends, and Bill Willis of Columbus at left tackle.

* * *

"That," Brown declared, "is one of the lightest Ohio teams in history, if not the lightest. Only the two tackles are over the 200-pound mark, and they don't have any to spare. But they're all fast, and that's what we want.

* * *

"The entire squad," he continued, "is made up mostly of small fellows from small towns. Of the first 33 on the roster, only three are from Cleveland, two from Toledo and two from Columbus. The big towns just don't seem to produce the kids we need, but we'll make good use of the boys from such spots as Gahanna, Shadyside, Crestline, Greenville, West Jefferson, Hudson, Parma, Wooster and Massillon. They're rugged boys, and good 'uns."

Starting for the "Whites," with some 500 high school coaches looking on after attending the university's two-day grid clinic starting today, will be Capt. Dick Palmer of Cleveland at fullback; Tom James of Massillon and Bill Durtschi of Galion at the halves; Paul Friday, the West Jefferson flash, at quarterback; John White of River Rouge, Mich., and Cecil Souders of Bucyrus at the ends; Jim Rees of Greenville and Don McCafferty of Cleveland at the tackles; Don Steinberg of Toledo and Bob Jabbusch of Elyria at the guards, and Gordon Appleby of Massillon at center.

Visiting coaches, at today's clinic session, saw motion pictures of the Buckeye-Southern California game of 1941, and then heard defensive football in all its phases discussed by Brown and his assistants, Fritz Mackey, Paul Bixler, Hugh McGranahan, Ernie Godfrey and Carroll Widdoes.

* * *

Tonight the group has a dinner, with President George M. Trautman of the American association as speaker, after which the mentors will attend the Columbus-Toledo baseball game.

Saturday's slate, in addition to the fotball game, calls for election of officers by the Scholastic Coaches association, and luncheon addresses by Gov. John W. Bricker, President Howard L. Bevis of the university, and H. R. Townsend, Ohio high school athletic commissioner.

OHIO CONFERENCE ACTS ON FRESHMEN

OBERLIN—(AP)—The Ohio athletic conference is expected to give its approval tonight to members who wish to use freshmen in varsity sports competition, after ironing out details as to first-year definitions.

Problems of transporting athletic teams also are due for discussion as conference faculty representatives meet with the Ohio Conference Managers association.

"Blondie's Blessed Event," the second picture, continues the experiences of the Bumstead family and adds a member to the household. Penny Singleton and Arthur Lake are cast.

Six new songs are featured in the picture and the voices heard in the picture are those of Cliff Edwards, Herman Bing and other prominent screen stars. "Klondike Fury," with Lucile Fairbanks is the co-feature.

2—Card of Thanks

WE WISH to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to our many friends, neighbors and relatives for their many acts of kindness extended to us during our recent bereavement, the death of our beloved husband and father, Dushan Markov. We especially wish to thank the Rev. H. L. Gilbert, and The Wappner Funeral Home and all who in any way tended to lessen our sorrow.
Mrs. Dora Markov and Family.
(S-K)

WITH REGARD TO A CARD OF THANKS

Very often a Card of Thanks in The News-Journal meets a need which can hardly be solved in any other way. Not only is it a gracious expression of gratitude to those who have sent floral tributes, but also courteously acknowledges the service and kindness of the many to whom a personal note of thanks cannot well be mailed, or whose names or addresses are not known.

A "Card of Thanks" can now be arranged by telephone: Dial 4251-6, ask for Miss Lane or Miss Stone, either will be glad to render whatever service and advice you need.

PAM—Carey Explains. By A. W. Brewerton

WHAT KIND OF A BOY WAS CARSON, COLONEL? DID HE HAVE VICIOUS INCLINATIONS?
OH, NO—DOUG WAS A GOOD BOY, LIKED BY EVERYBODY!
5-15
THEN, WHEN WE FINISHED HIGH SCHOOL, I WENT AWAY TO STUDY LAW—SORT OF LOST TRACK OF DOUG, AND WHEN I NEXT SAW HIM, MANY YEARS LATER IN THIS CITY, HE'D BECOME A SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS MAN...
.... BUT HE'D CHANGED—WASN'T LIKE THE SAME DOUG CARSON I USED TO RUN AROUND WITH. HE WAS HARD, CRAFTY, COLD-BLOODED. I UNDERSTAND HE'D SEPARATED FROM HIS WIFE.
GUESS WE'RE ALL PRETTY LUCKY TO HAVE THINGS TURN OUT THIS WAY! THE COLONEL SURELY HAD A CLOSE CALL; HE SAYS HE WAS TERRIFIED WHEN HE SAW ME, BECAUSE HE THOUGHT CARSON'D SHOOT ME!

COMMERCIAL AIR SERVICE STOCKS DROP

Lose Point and More After Government Action For Control by Army.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Leading stocks tacked on fractional advances in today's market transactions but exceptions were plentiful.

Improved were U. S. Steel, Union Carbide, Chesapeake & Ohio, General Electric, Montgomery Ward, and International Nickel.

Down as much as a point or so were American Airlines, Eastern Air Lines and United Air Lines, following government action to place commercial air lines under army control.

Boardrooms noted the Dun & Bradstreet survey which said that while most retailers found public spending during the past week about equalled totals of a year ago, a majority had moderate to substantial decreases in the physical volume of turnover. The actual drop in distribution corresponded with a 15 per cent price rise over the like 1941 week.

The Feredal Reserve Board noted a flattening out of the nation's department store sales in the week concluded May 9. The average dollar aggregate for that period was estimated at 6 per cent above the same week last year. The year-to-year increase in the preceding week amounted to 8 per cent.

GAS CURB JUST MISSES CITY

he said. Western Pennsylvania and portions of West Virginia with large stocks of oil also were excluded from the ration order.

Unofficial estimates were that 75 per cent of the estimated 8,500,000 registrants in the east classified themselves as essential motorists and obtained "X" or "B" cards. "X" cards allow unlimited purchases; "B" cards allow the holders to buy from 33 to 57 gallons of gasoline between now and July 1; "A" cards, for non-essential motorists, allow the purchase of only three gallons per week.

Beckmann said, however, it was his belief—although he had received no definite information from OPA—that "it is only a matter of time" until gasoline sales are restricted in Ohio, particularly the eastern section of the state.

'No one in this office knows yet when gasoline rationing will come to Ohio nor how drastic it will be," he added. "From all indications, though, it appears that it is as certain to come as anything can be these days."

Beckmann said that if gasoline were rationed in Ohio it would be to conserve rubber and help facilitate the flow of vital traffic rather than because of a shortage of gasoline.

Federal ration officials reported a semi-rationing set-up would have to be put in force in a 50 mile wide area along the eastern and southeastern Ohio border to secure effective enforcement of the gasoline rationing order in Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Preliminary plans provide that gasoline station attendants in that section of the state must demand ration cards from drivers whose automobiles bear licenses from Pennsylvania, West Virginia, the District of Columbia or any of the other 15 states now operating under the rationing order.

OPA officials admitted there were loopholes in the plan and that a motorist with an Ohio license could get a tankful of gasoline in his home state, drive across the state line and sell it. No penalty is provided for such a "moral violation" of the order because the gas curtailment plan is being operated to a large extent on the honor system.
